CARPETS.

There is a fact which ought to recommend this department to you. We are the contractors for all the Government Carpets, Linoleums, Oilcloths, Curtains, and general furnishing. Although perhaps we do not make such a display to the street as some other shops, we have double as good, and we think better, stock of these goods as they are; and here you can rely on getting quickly, civilly, reasonably, and well served, and your orders punctually and intelligently carried out.

Here is a "Yankee Notion," which is used by the million in the United States, and which is a boon to the housekeeper, and recommends itself to you—is as near perfection as anything in that line can be. They never get out of order, and will bear rough handling. Their mechanism is simple and complete, and they are destined to supersede everything of the kind in the market.

They are very simple — They are very durable
They are very reliable — They are the standard roller.

They are incomparably superior to any of the various make-shifts hitherto used for handling window blinds.

They are quite indispensable for windows, awnings, maps, sky-lights, &c.

The gratitude of all housekeepers is due to Mr. Stewart Hartshorn for his practically perfect invention in shade rollers.

They contain less machinery and fewer parts than any other shade roller manufactured, and never get out of order.

They are the best in the world.
They are easily handled.
They are easily put up.
They have no vexatious cords and balances.
They are no doubt the correct thing.
Send for one for each of your windows.

We are the agents for these "Hart-born Rollers."

Come in to-day and make your purchases. We can and do serve you promptly, attentively, and well.

ALL USE IT. IT IS AT EVERY PICNIC,
IT IS IN EVERY KITCHEN.
It obtained the Gold Medal at the New Zealand Exhibition, and the Silver Medal at the Perth Exhibition.
It gives the finish to every dish, for gravies, soups, game, fish, or cold meats. It resists dire-pepsia, and increases the appetite. It has a place at Government House, and is seen at every respectable artizan's. The protectionists use it because it is colonial, the free-trader because it is cheap. It is the especial favourite with all classes because, as one of the Sydney clergymen wrote, "It is the best yet made."
It is the

The French ship Valparaiso arrived on Saturday night from Charente, via Melbourne, with a cargo of salt and brandy. This fine iron vessel was built at Port Glasgow in 1875, and was owned in Workington until about 1877, when she caught fire in the harbour of Monte Video, and had to be scuttled. After lying under water for about eight months, she was purchased by Messrs. A. D. Hordes and Sons, of Bordeaux, who had her raised and repaired, and have owned her ever since. After the fire there was scarcely a vestige of woodwork left about the ship, her decks, houses, &c., having all been destroyed. Now she is in the best of order in every respect, and looks as if she had just left the slip. For some years she has been engaged in the trade on the west coast of South America, and this is her first voyage to Australia. Captain Vonin, who is in command, reports that he left Charente on January 22, and experienced light winds and calms until crossing the Equator on February 16 in long. (Paris) 30° W. The S.E. trades were favourable, but after parting with them the ship was becalmed in the tropic of Capricorn for five days. The meridian of the Cape of Good Hope was crossed on March 8, in lat. 42° S., and N.E. winds were afterwards met with to long. 30° E., and lat. 40° S. On March 22, five very large icebergs and a number of smaller ones were seen. Easterly winds continued to lat. 47°, and as the vessel hauled northerly favourable winds from N. to W. were found. From April 9 (lat. 41° S.) calms and light winds prevailed. Cape Otway was made on April 15, but Port Phillip Heads were not entered until the 18th. After discharging cargo at Melbourne, the Valparaiso sailed on the 2nd instant with light east-six winds which lasted until Cape Howe was passed on the 7th instant. The wind then came away from the southward, and gradually increased to a strong gale, with heavy rains and a high confused sea. On the 8th a heavy sea broke on board, and swept away several spars, and some sails were blown away, but this was the only damage done. The Heads were made on the 9th instant, but owing to the weather the ship could not attempt to enter, and she was driven to the northward. Since then she has been beating on to port again. The Heads were entered at about 10 o'clock on Saturday night, and an anchorage was come to in Watson's Bay. Yesterday morning she was taken in tow, and brought up near Garden Island, where she anchored.

The Konoowarra (s.) cleared Port Phillip Heads at 6 p.m. on the 10th instant, passed Wilson's Promontory at 4 a.m. on the 11th, Gabo Island at 11 p.m. same day, Cape St. George at 1.15 p.m. on the 12th, and entered Sydney Heads at 8.30 p.m. same date. Experienced moderate S.E. wind to Wilson's Promontory; thence to arrival strong S.E. wind and heavy sea.

The French barque St. Yves is from Zebu, Philippine Islands, with a cargo of hemp. She is a wooden vessel of 742 tons register, and hails from Nantes. She left Zebu on March 12, and had a fine weather passage until sighting Cape Otway on the 2nd instant. The wind then came away from the north-west, and blew strongly for three days, at the end of which time it worked round to the southward and blew a strong gale with a terrific sea, and was accompanied by very heavy rain. The weather was so bad that, notwithstanding that the Heads were made on the 5th instant, she could not enter, but was driven away to the eastward, and has been beating up ever since. She entered the Heads yesterday afternoon and was towed up to Neutral Bay, where she anchored. Part of the St. Yves' cargo is for Melbourne.

H.M.S. Diamond returned to port on Saturday after an absence of over four months, during which she has visited Hobart, Lyttelton, Wellington, and Auckland, leaving here on January 3rd the Diamond arrived at Hobart on the 12th of the same month, after a passage which was not marked by any event of interest. A stay of six weeks was made at the capital of the "bright little island," and was a most enjoyable time for all on board. The annual regatta was held at Hobart whilst the Diamond was there, and proved a most successful affair. In the race for men-of-war boats there were about 12 crews entered, including representatives of the Nelson, the Espiegle, and the Diamond, and the men of the latter ship proved their superiority over the other competitors by coming in first and second. Tasmania was left behind on the 6th March, the Espiegle keeping the Diamond company. The ships were under canvas, and an exciting race was expected, but ere from all the ships of the fleet present, viz., the Diamond proved too speedy for her consort, and had to shorten sail to allow her to come up again. At length Lyttelton was reached on the 6th March, and nine days were filled up very pleasantly at the capital of the province. Wellington, New Zealand, was the next place visited, the ship arriving there on the 15th. The weather was unfortunately anything but propitious whilst the Diamond was on the coast of New Zealand, and Wellington proved no exception to the rule, as it was blowing strongly most of the time she was there. On March 23 a fresh departure was taken, the Diamond on this occasion being pointed to Auckland. The greater part of the passage was made under sail, and as the winds were contrary the time occupied in covering the distance between the two ports extended to 11 days. A stay of three weeks was made at Auckland, and a round of festivities in which the Diamond was interested, culminated in the Governor's ball, which took place on the night of the 24th April, and passed off in a highly successful manner. Next day the Diamond cast off from her moorings and commenced her voyage for Sydney. Moderate weather and winds were kept up till the afternoon of the 9th instant, when the wind came away from the southward, was very squally, and raised a very high broken sea. During the height of the storm, the jolleboom, the starboard bower anchor, and a portion of the netting were carried away, and a great deal of water was taken on board. The ship was hove-to most of the time under storm sails. The gale moderated somewhat on the 11th instant, and the Heads were entered on Saturday afternoon. The Diamond anchored in Farm Cove.

The India (s.) left Noumea on May 5, clearing the reef by the Dumbea Pass at 1 p.m. same day; on Wednesday morning, 9th instant, made the land 20 miles south of Smoky Cape, the ship at the time being hove to, there being a heavy southerly gale blowing, with a high sea running; bore away for Trial Bay, and anchored in the bay at 8 p.m. same day. On Thursday the weather moderated and the India got underway again, and arrived in Sydney on Sunday at 6 a.m., having experienced a strong S.S.E. gale from Sunday's Cape to Sydney with a high S.E. sea rolling in on the coast.

The Queen of the South (s.) crossed the Macleay River bar at 10 a.m. on the 10th instant, and arrived at Sydney at 11.30 p.m. on the 12th, having experienced strong southerly winds and a heavy sea throughout the passage. Cargo: 1400 bags maize, 77 pigs, 8 cases fruit, 4 hogsheads tallow, 84 hides, 10 cases eggs, 6 coops poultry, 1 cow, and sundries.

The Euxine (s.), with part of original cargo from Hongkong, and the Titus (s.), with 430 tons of railway iron and original cargo from Newcastle of 600 tons coal, cleared at the Customs on Saturday, and should leave the harbour to-day.

On Saturday the ships Star of Persia and Northbrook and the barque Staghound were towed from Dibbs' Wharf to the stream, the ship Thermopylæ was berthed at Moore's Wharf, and the steamer Wodan was towed from the Grafton Wharf to the stream.

To-day the barque Altear will be berthed at the Grafton Wharf, the barque Lizzie Bell at Dibbs' Wharf, and the ship Evesham Abbey at the Grafton Wharf.

The departures of the steamers Wendouree, for Melbourne, and Corinna, for Launceston, have been postponed until to-day.

The steamship Wodan cleared the Heads at 9.30 a.m. yesterday, bound to Newcastle. She will there load coal for Calcutta.

A barque passed the Heads N.E., 15 miles off, at 6.55 a.m. yesterday.

MONETARY AND COMMERCIAL.

Saturday Evening.

In the Import market business to-day was quiet, and no change in values transpired. At the auction sales of hair, horns, and bones last week's rates were obtained, there being a continued good demand for these descriptions of produce.

We are drifting rapidly into that condition of politics (says the Chicago correspondent of the British Trade Journal) when the question of tariff for revenue, or for protection merely, will have to be met. The trade condition of the country has brought this about. The agricultural sections are not only kicking against the tariff, but the most formidable opposition to it comes now from New England. That section needs cheap coal, cheap iron, and cheap wool. It cannot do without them. But when you strike at the tariff on raw materials you strike at the whole protection theory. Hence the contention in Congress has been reduced to supply a question between one locality and another. General Hancock, the late Democratic candidate for the presidency, was laughed out of court because he said the tariff was a local question. But, in reality, he told the truth. One locality wants a certain product free of duty; another locality wants that product taxed; and so it goes. The pig-iron men fight the iron-ore men. The ore men fight the Bessemer steel men. The consumers are crying to be delivered from all of them.

The Customs receipts for to-day were as follow:—Spirits, £1240 4s. 8d.; wine (still), £17 6s. 9d.; wine (sparkling), £5 1s. 3d.; ale, porter, and beer (in wood), £38 15s.; ale, porter, and beer (in bottle), £7 2s. 6d.; tobacco and snuff, £29 16s.; tobacco (unmanufactured), £275 6s.; tea, £40 6s. 6d.; sugar, refined, 10s.; sugar, unrefined, £6 1s. 8d.; opium, £2 4s. 5d.; rice, £115 14s. 1d.; dried fruits, £387 1s. 8d.; malt, £7 3s. 6d.; sarsaparilla, 12s.; specific duty, £947 6s. 6d.; Chinese registration, £90; pilotage, £65 10s. 8d.; harbour and light dues, £54 18s.; total, £3509 1s. 3d.

mite, destroyed a bridge whilst a large force was crossing. Two hundred men were killed on the spot, whilst a large number received serious injuries. There has been an encounter between the Afghan Ameer's troops and a rebel hill tribe. The latter were badly defeated.

The following important resolution respecting the Orient Company was arrived at by the Conference on Friday evening, and was confirmed on Saturday morning:—"In the event of New South Wales concluding a contract with the Orient Company, it shall be at the risk of that colony only; but any other colony transmitting postal matter thereby shall pay the said company a rate not less than 10s. per pound on letters and 6d. per pound on newspapers and packets transmitted homeward thereby. That no future postal subsidy shall be subject to this agreement except by the unanimous approval of the colonies assenting hereto." The Conference sat for nearly three hours on Saturday, and have practically finished their business. They will meet at 10 o'clock on Tuesday morning for the adoption of their report. A precis of the business transacted by the Conference will be found in another column.

Mr. J. E. Redmond, M.P., delivered an address in the Opera House on Saturday afternoon, the subject of which was "Self-government Historically Considered." The chair was taken by Mr. J. G. O'Connor, and the theatre was filled in every part. Amongst those present were a number of ladies, and several Roman Catholic clergymen, and members of the Assembly. The address was devoted principally to a description of the principles of federalism or home rule, and a vindication of them. It was temperate in tone, and was listened to with attention, and the lecturer was frequently applauded. The proceedings were of an orderly character, the only interruption to them coming from a gentleman who desired Mr. Redmond to "Give us something about Parkes." In acknowledging a vote of thanks in his favour, Mr. Redmond announced his intention of revisiting Sydney if possible, after his journey through New Zealand, and he also expressed his sense of gratefulness for the cordial reception which the majority of the people here had extended to him and his brother. His address will be found in another column.

Mr. James Merriman died at his residence, Argyle-place, yesterday morning. For about 30 years Mr. Merriman was one of the most enterprising of our colonists in connection with our mercantile marine. He was many years an alderman, and three times Mayor of Sydney; and for some time was one of the representatives of West Sydney in the Legislative Assembly. His funeral is to take place from Trinity Church tomorrow afternoon.

The handbook of information published by the P. and O. Steam Navigation Company, in regard to their steamers, contains an interesting announcement respecting the facilities now afforded to travellers. A number of trips, called "Combination Tours," are specified, by which a journey round the world may be made with great speed and comfort, and with the minimum of trouble and responsibility. Particulars are given of the way in which a voyage may be made round the world by Egypt, Ceylon, Australia, and America; another tour takes the same route, but includes a trip through India. The traveller may go round the world by Egypt, Ceylon, the Straits, China, Japan, and America; or he may take the same route and also include the Indian tour. He may go from London to India and back by way of Ceylon, or to Australia by way of India and back by way of Ceylon, or from London to China and Japan via India, Penang, and Singapore, and back via Colombo. Tickets at excursion rates are issued for all these journeys, available for three, six, or 12 months.

On Saturday the attendance at the exhibition of loan pictures, held in the Town Hall, was better than it had been on either of the preceding days, and the gentlemen who have interested themselves in the affair were encouraged to hope that during the week large numbers of people will avail themselves of this opportunity of inspecting such a collection as is rarely got together here. The water colours, which number over 100, are especially admirable, including as they do examples from the brush of artists from Samuel Prout downwards; and among the oil paintings are several splendid pictures. They have been all arranged so as to be shown to the best advantage, and in no way could the art lover spend a few hours more pleasantly than in a visit to the extempore picture gallery at the Town Hall. It is only on rare occasions like this that people can form an idea of the extent to which our wealthier classes encourage art, and we hope that in future a share of the patronage extended to English and continental painters will be devoted to the encouragement of Australian artists.

On Saturday morning there were some indications that the stormy and wet weather which has prevailed for some days past would give place to fine weather, the sun shining out bravely, and the wind moderating considerably. In the afternoon, however, it was seen that the wished-for change was apparently further off than ever, and after dark all hopes of fine weather were dissipated, as rain fell heavily at intervals, and the wind came in strong gusts from the south-east. Yesterday there was no alteration in the state of the weather, rain falling in sharp showers, and the wind, though somewhat more moderate, being very squally from the south-east. All along the coast, the same kind of weather was reported, and, as here, a heavy sea prevailed.

In the law column we publish a full report of the judgments in the case of Barraclough v. the Orient S. N. Company, decided last Friday. The Court held that goods on being duly landed on a convenient and accustomed wharf, are within the dominion of the consignee, if they are delivered in such a way that he can remove them, notwithstanding that the shipowners have a lien on the goods for the freight.

A Court of Revision for the electoral districts of East Sydney, Paddington, Balmain, and St. Leonards was held at the Water Police Court by Mr. Marsh on Saturday, when a number of claims from persons desirous of having their names placed upon the rolls, and in some cases objections to the applications, were considered. In a number of cases claims were held to be invalid, on the ground that the claimant had not resided six months prior to January in the electorate with respect to which the claim was made. The revised rolls for the respective districts will show increases in the number of persons entitled to vote as follows:—East Sydney, 900; Paddington, 800; Balmain, 760; St. Leonards, 450.

On Thursday night Brother I. J. Isaacs, treasurer of the Masonic Lodge of Tranquillity, was presented by the members with a handsome Masonic jewel bearing an inscription setting forth that it was intended as "a token of the high esteem and worth in which he is held, and in recognition of valuable services rendered to this lodge since its inauguration." The jewel is of gold, of the usual pattern, bearing the Masonic insignia; but the name of the lodge on the border, instead of being merely engraved on the gold surface, is in gold letters on a ground of blue enamel. It is the workmanship of Mr. P. Mitchell, jeweller, of 304, George-street.

On Saturday night a mishap occurred at Parramatta railway station to the down mail train. It was being shunted there to allow the tourists' train to pass, when it was backed into by an empty suburban train, the result being that two or three of the passengers were shaken and the buffers of the sleeping car damaged. After a short delay the mail train proceeded on its journey with all its passengers. An enquiry held almost immediately afterwards by Mr. Reid, the traffic manager, proved that Shunter Hoy, who admitted that he had forgotten that the tourists' train had not arrived, was alone to blame, and Hoy was suspended, pending the decision of the Commissioner for Railways upon his case.

Edward Russell Daunt, who absconded from his bail some months ago and was arrested on board the steamer Euxine on Friday, was brought up before Mr. Justice Windeyer in Chambers, on Saturday morning, and remanded to the next sittings of the Central Criminal Court. Bail was fixed at two sureties in £250 each, but was not forthcoming. Mr. Herbert E. Daunt writes to say that his brother, E. R. Daunt, came to Sydney purposely to surrender to his bail, and had no intention of going to Melbourne, as might have been inferred from a paragraph in Saturday's issue.

A case of revolting brutality was disclosed on Saturday. A married woman named Elizabeth Whalen, residing in Cumberland-street, was taken to the hospital covered with bruises, the result (it is alleged) of her husband's illtreatment. She stated that some time after she had gone to bed on the previous night her husband came home and gave her two blows in the face with his fist. He then made her get up, and flogged her cruelly with a whip, twisting the thong round the handle. Both her shoulders were very much bruised, the discolouration extending as far as the elbow. The abdomen on the left side was much discoloured, and both legs were covered with bruises, the left being literally black and blue from hip to toe. There was also some bruising on the back, evidently caused by kicking. The poor woman was admitted for treatment.

On Saturday morning the City Coroner initiated an inquest touching the fatal accident which occurred on Thursday afternoon last on board the steamship Aberdeen whilst discharging cargo at Parbury's Wharf, and in which two men named James White and Olaf Nellson were the victims. At the conclusion of the evidence which was so far adduced, the foreman of the jury stated that he had made an inspection of the iron bolt, the breaking of which in connection with the discharging gear was the cause of the accident, and as one who had had considerable experience in regard to iron he came to the conclusion that the bolt had not been properly hammered. The coroner thereupon said that after such an expression of opinion he would be obliged to specially adjourn the inquest in order that professional evidence on the subject might be obtained. The adjournment was then made until Tuesday morning next.

On Friday afternoon, about half-past 1, William Saddler, formerly a sergeant in the police force, died at his residence, No. 9, St. John's-place, off Sussex-street. His daughter states that on the previous evening he came home complaining of feeling ill, and went to bed. He got up late on Friday morning, still complaining. He vomited a small quantity of blood, and had several fainting fits, in one of which he died. Deceased was about 50 years of age.

A very serious accident took place yesterday afternoon at Finlay's Bazaar, Pitt-street, near Market-street. One of the grooms was taking the saddle off a horse, when the animal suddenly kicked out and struck a boy standing near named Joseph Cabel. He was picked up insensible and conveyed to the Sydney Hospital. On admission, he was pale and still unconscious: there was a quantity of clotted blood in the right ear, and blood was oozing from the meatus. There was also a small hematoma about the size of a walnut behind and above the ear. He vomited two or three times, and on one occasion blood was mixed with the vomited matter, but no marks of injury were to be found on the abdomen. At a late hour last night the patient remained in a very critical condition, the hemorrhage from the ear still continuing. Cabel is 15 years of age, and is employed as a messenger in the telegraph department. He is also a chorister at the cathedral.

On Saturday morning Clara Mangan, a girl of eight, was knocked down and run over by a dray in Foster-street, near Campbell-street, the wheel passing over her abdomen. She was taken by her mother to the Sydney Hospital. On admission she was pale and faint, with the pulse small and fluttering, the skin cold and bedewed with perspiration. She complained of pain over the abdominal region, especially on the right side, where the marks of the wheel were plainly perceptible. Fortunately no bones were broken, and the patient yesterday was progressing very favourably.

An accident took place on the Haymarket Reserve on Saturday night. A man named Edward Brown was struck in the face by one of the swinging boats, and was rendered insensible. Nearly 20 minutes passed before he could be revived, and he was then taken to the hospital. He had a semi-circular wound on the forehead over the left eye. He was admitted to the accident ward.

The Albury Banner states that on Wednesday, the 2nd instant, a parcel of bank notes amounting to £300 was counted out in the Bank of Australasia at Yackandandah for transmission to Tallangatta. The notes were made up into a parcel, duly posted, and the parcel registered, but upon opening the parcel at Tallangatta it was found to contain but £298, two £1-notes being missing from the bundle. As the numbers of all the notes were taken when counted out, there cannot be any mistake as to the amount, and the numbers of the missing notes are therefore known.

Regarding the result of the Postal Conference, the Argus of Friday observes:—"Altogether the Australasian colonies are to be congratulated on what has been done. If the conference had come to an untoward conclusion, the question of entering the Postal Union would have been postponed indefinitely, and not only would the people have been deprived of a great and lasting benefit, but Australia would have been brought into dispute amongst the communities of the old world. An earnest desire has been felt both by Great Britain and the leading Continental countries to bring within the organisation all the countries of the earth, especially the Australasian colonies, the commerce of which is daily becoming larger and more important. The colonies generally must regard the event with satisfaction."

The Rev. B. Scott, M.A., of Chalmers Church, Melbourne, delivered a lecture on "The influence of young men on the future of Australia," in the course of which he remarked (as reported in the Telegraph):—"He said that he had been much struck by the absence of young men from the church, both here and in the old country. This has been attributed to various causes, and, doubtless, some of the blame must be laid at the door of the churches. Our services should be adapted to meet the wants of the age. In London the experiment has been tried, with gratifying success, of throwing open the churches in the evenings, when good music is rendered by trained choirs, and discourses are delivered on the perplexing religious questions of the day. But much rests with young men themselves. Let them attract others to the side of religion by showing that it is not productive of gloom, and does not destroy youthful hopes and pleasures. By labouring to present the bright side of Christianity to the world they will do much to further its spread in our midst."

The correspondent of the South Australian Register on the Albert goldfields (N.S.W.) writes on April 28:—"We cannot avoid thinking that we are the unhappy victims of an unfortunate concatenation of circumstances. We live in a sort of 'no man's land,' owing allegiance to New South Wales, dependent upon South Australia, obtaining law from Sydney, and goods from Adelaide. At the junction of three colonies, upon the great highway of traffic, we look in vain for assistance, and begin to despair of the long-promised road being opened by the South Australian Government, while that from Wilcannia can never be depended on inasmuch as Wilcannia itself is often short of supplies. Will the day ever arrive when our statesmen shall outgrow the old parish vestryman? When will they have the courage to discuss the question of federation? This splitting-up of a continent into colonies would never last a month if the eyes of men were opened to the extravagance of the present system, and the grand developments possible under a federated Government."

Captain J. Hammond and the chief officer of the barque George Bewley testify (the Otago Times states) to the wonderful effect of "oil on the troubled waters." When their vessel was on the way out from London, running before a fierce gale, it was found that a large quantity of water constantly broke over the stern, and the cabin was partially flooded. Captain Hammond determined to try the "oil experiment," and accordingly two canvas bags were prepared and filled with oil. These were hung over each quarter, and produced a wonderful effect, for subsequently scarcely any water broke on board.

A Wanganui telegram to the Otago Daily Times states that J. M. Bertram, a passenger by the Hula, from Wellington, fell overboard on May 2, at about 20 minutes to 9 p.m., when off Mana Island. He was standing on the bridge leaning against the rail, when he lost his balance and fell overboard. It was too rough to lower a boat, but a lifebuoy was immediately thrown out. It was, however, of no avail. He was a draper, residing at Halcombe. An inquiry was held, when the evidence showed that deceased, who had been drinking heavily in Wellington, was refused a drink in the cabin by the second steward. Bertram went upon the bridge to interview the chief steward, and while leaning against the rail the steamer lurched to port, precipitating the deceased overboard.

The following particulars are given in the New Zealand papers of the lamentable boat accident off Shelly Beach, Ponsonby, in which Professor Walker, of the Auckland University, lost his life:—"Professors Tucker and Walker, about half-past 12, went out for a sail and to fish in an open boat, accompanied by Mr. Bydder's son Robert, a lad of 14 years of age. Before starting, Mr. Bydder took two reefs in the mainsail, as the day was puffy and squally, and the boat then worked out of the bay at his place, the wind being about N.W., and the lad at the tiller. Mr. Bydder stood on the hill watching the progress of the boat, till it reached about 100 yards off the Shelly Beach reef. Off the reef it seemed to catch the wind and the sea, and he noticed it put about and run for home. In a minute or two the boat gave a lurch and capsized. He at once rushed down to the beach, where the Rev. Mr. Runciman's punt was lying, but there were no oars or rowlocks, and he returned to his house to get these articles. In going back to the beach he saw his son running through the paddock to the house, but before they could get further assistance, a dingy had put off from Masefield's (where some lads had been watching the boat, and noticed the accident), and succeeded in rescuing Professor Tucker, who was clinging to the boat in an exhausted and almost insensible condition, and could not have held out much longer, while Professor Walker was nowhere to be seen." Professor Walker had only arrived in Auckland by the steamer Rotomahana, via the south, on the 10th ultimo, and was to have occupied the chair of Mathematics and Mathematical Physics in the Auckland University. He was a single man, about 26 years of age, and had been a student at Durham College before going to Cambridge. Deceased was a Fellow of Queen's College, Cambridge, and second wrangler in 1879. He obtained his appointment over a large number of applicants.

The following is the report of the Prince Alfred Hospital for the week ending 13th May, 1883:—Number of in-patients at last report, 67 males, 52 females—total, 119; since admitted, 16 males, 11 females—total, 27; discharged, 7 males, 5 females—total, 12; died, 2 males, 2 females—total, 4; remaining in hospital on 13th May, 64 males, 56 females—total, 120.

AMUSEMENTS.

THEATRE ROYAL.

Rarely has the Theatre Royal held such a large audience as that with which it was crowded on Saturday evening, when Mr. Geo. Rignold, who will shortly depart for Europe, took his farewell benefit. Many had to be refused admission because there was not room for them, and so to-night a second benefit performance will be given, on which occasion Mr. Rignold will appear for the last time, and a long and prosperous season will close. The programme consisted of "Alone" and "Black-eyed Susan," and no two better plays could have been selected for performance on the same evening, for each is a gem in its way, and they contrast perfectly in every respect. In the first Mr. Rignold plays blind, passionate old Colonel Challice, and in the second the gallant young sailor William, and each of them is a distinct portraiture so exquisitely finished that, while either would prove the actor to be master of his art, comparison and study of both on one evening excite hearty admiration of his talent. The audience were delighted, wreaths and bouquets were showered upon Mr. Rignold and those who supported him, and the applause was at times tumultuous. At the close of "Alone" the curtain was raised again, and the Hon. Sir Patrick Jennings, M.L.A., Mr. D. O'Connor, M.L.A., Mr. W. Neild, and Mr. George Rignold were seen upon the stage. Sir Patrick Jennings, addressing Mr. Rignold, expressed in a few neatly worded sentences his admiration of that gentleman's distinguished ability as an actor, and his high character as a private citizen; and then on behalf of a few friends and admirers made a presentation to him. This consisted of a beautiful gold locket with Mr. Rignold's monogram upon it in diamonds, and a set of diamond studs. Mr. Rignold, in reply, said that he was no exception to the rule that actors were bad speakers, but he relied on their proverbial generosity to allow him, however feebly, to express his heartfelt thanks for this evidence of their regard offered to him on the grounds of such professional merit as he possessed. He was honoured in that Sir Patrick Jennings had presented it to him, because that gentleman was known throughout Australia as a patron of science and art, and a true friend to artists. He thanked those who had taken part in this movement, and was sure they would be glad to hear that his Australian engagements—particularly the Sydney ones—had been successful, and that he had invested his money here in a new theatre. He would have to leave Sydney in a few days to fulfil a short engagement in Victoria, after which he should go to Europe. He would be absent a year, and trusted on his return to find her Majesty's Theatre completed, on one of the finest sites in the world. He hoped to be then the means of introducing to these colonies, particularly to Sydney, where such a noble building was to be erected, some of the greatest artists who in different departments had glorified the dramatic profession in the old world. These speeches were frequently interrupted by applause, and during the whole of the evening there was constant evidence of the popularity Mr. Rignold has gained here. To-night "Alone" and "Black-eyed Susan" will be repeated, and then the theatre will be closed until Saturday night, when Mr. Bland Holt will commence a season by the production of "Mankind."

GAIETY THEATRE.

The Gaiety Theatre was crowded on Saturday night, and the manner in which "Un Ballo in Maschera," which was produced on the occasion, was performed quite justified such an attendance, and the enthusiasm with which the opera was received. For the work itself is one of Verdi's best, full of life and movement and human interest, and studded with melodies and concerted numbers which live in the memory; and it was interpreted by a band of such competent artists that the bursts of applause which occasionally interrupted the progress of the opera, the recalls at the close of each scene, and finally the grand recall at the finale of the opera were all thoroughly deserved. It is seldom that an operatic company competent to produce this delightful work visits Sydney, and certainly of late years operagoers here have not had the opportunity of enjoying such a performance of it as was given on Saturday night. The soprani, the tenor, the contralto, the baritone, and the bassi were all excellent, and the result was complete enjoyment to the audience. The plot, gloomy as Verdi's plots usually are, is widely known, telling as it does how Count Riccardo loves Adelia, the wife of his secretary Renato, and how the latter, misled into believing his wife false, conspires with other enemies of Riccardo, and stabs him at a masked ball, just as the Count had made arrangements for ridding himself of temptation by sending Adelia and her husband far away to their native land. This very dramatic story has been wedded to splendidly written music, of which the most widely known numbers are the scena and quintette "E Scherzo," and the baritone scena and aria, "Eri tu." The cast is an exacting one, but the company of associated artistes can, and do, meet its requirements. Signora Grazioli is the Adelia, and she sings the music with richness of tone, accuracy, and dramatic expression, while her acting is animated and appropriate throughout. The grand scena when Adelia arrives at the foot of the gibbet to pluck the herb which is to rid her of her guilty love, is a treat, and the subsequent duet between her and Riccardo was creditable to both artists. Her acting in the finale to the act was very graphic, and the scena and aria "Morro ma prima," at the commencement of the fourth, was full of feeling. The duet with Oscar and the lovely one with Riccardo at the close of the fifth act were also well given, and the merit of Signora Grazioli's efforts throughout were thoroughly recognised by the audience. Miss Alice Rees, as Oscar, made a handsome page—a merry, personable stripling, picturesque in dress and vivacious in manner, and she sang delightfully. The aria "Volta la terra," the page's part in the well-known quintette, the duet "Di che fulgor," and the aria "Saper Vorreste," were sung excellently, and for the last Miss Rees was applauded so persistently that she had to repeat the last verse twice. Signor Castelli sang better than he has hitherto done here, and his voice rang out full, true, and clear until the last act, when it became uncertain, as though the cold which affected his throat a week ago were not quite cured. The song "Di tu se fedele" was sung with great spirit, and that the quintette "E Scherzo" was encored was largely due to Signor Castelli. The duet with Adelia in the third act was another triumph for both singers, and in the last act Signor Castelli's acting was very clever. Signora Venosta was unusually impressive as the sorceress Ulrica, and the invocation, "Re dell' abisso," was splendidly declaimed. The scena "Eluí," and Ulrica's share of the trio, "Della citta," were also effective. Signor Piergentili sang the part of Renato excellently, the duet with Adelia and the grand "Eri tu" being very warmly applauded; and Signori Grazioli and Beuferreri, as Samuele and Tommaso respectively, sang the parts as they have rarely been sung here. Both voices were at their best, and the grand volume of blended voice was invaluable in the concerted numbers. Signor Borzoni did well in the little part of Silvano, and the orchestra worked capitally. "Un Ballo" will be repeated this evening.

SHIPWRECK RELIEF SOCIETY.

The concert to be given at the Protestant Hall to-morrow night, in aid of the funds of the National Shipwreck Relief Society of New South Wales, should be a pleasant one, for Miss Woolley is a notable organiser of such entertainments, and the programme, a well arranged one, contains the names of several ladies and gentlemen whose musical efforts are always welcome. If abundance of patronage counts for anything the attendance should be large.

Our Melbourne correspondent telegraphs:—"Taken from Life" is drawing large audiences at the Theatre Royal. Mr. Dampier's season closes on Friday, and next Saturday Mr. Rignold will appear in "Henry V." A new emotional play, by George Darrell, entitled "The Naked Truth," was produced at the Opera House on Saturday evening. At the Bijou, Wybert Reeve's Company continue to do good business. There was a large audience at the Town Hall on Saturday evening, when the Kennedy family gave another of their entertaining performances.

Our Adelaide correspondent telegraphs that on Saturday "Patience" at the Theatre Royal completed a run of four weeks, the houses being crowded. The "Pirates of Penzance" will be given on Monday night. Thompson's Zulu war diorama has had a successful season, and will shortly start for New South Wales.

All the members of the Royal Family at present in England, with the exception of her Majesty the Queen, were present, and also the members of the Cabinet, foreign embassies, and representatives of colonial commissions. Numbers of foreign fishing girls in their national costumes attended, and hundreds of British fishermen, who were admitted after the grand procession of the different courts. The Duke of Richmond delivered the opening address, and the ceremony of declaring the exhibition open was performed by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. His Royal Highness promised to read the paper by H.R.H. the Duke of Edinburgh on the fishing population of the United kingdom, before the Fisheries Congress. The collection of exhibits is very complete, and there is an unequalled display of life-saving apparatus. Canada is the best colonial court, and the exhibits sent in by Great Britain, Sweden, and Holland are excellent.

VICTORIA.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

The attendance at the Museum and Art Gallery to-day, when they were opened for the second time on Sunday, was again very large, the registered number of visitors being 4452. The petitions in favour of opening the Public Library as well as the Museum on Sundays were laid out at all places of public resort yesterday and to-day, and were very largely signed.

Dr. Robert Ray, homœopathist, sustained injuries this afternoon which proved fatal. He was driving along St. Kilda-road when the horse bolted. Dr. Ray was thrown out on his head, and died a few hours afterwards.

T. H. Guennett, the well-known professor of music, who was very seriously injured by being thrown from his horse on Thursday, is suffering from concussion of the brain.

A shooting match with the Morris tubes took place on Saturday, at the old Government Printing Office, the competitors being teams of five boys from six schools, the imaginary distances being 200 and 500 yards, with five shots at each. The scores were—Fitzroy State School, 97 points; King's College, 83; Hawthorn Grammar School, 76; South Yarra State School, 59; Wesley College, 50; Collingwood State School, 49.

The Insurance and Banking Record, in a review of the Victorian banking returns for the first quarter of 1883, states that the impression they create is in the main favourable, but they offer no immediate prospect of any lowering of the rates of interest and discount. The Record remarks—"There is of course the clip to come to hand shortly, but the extensive advances to Victorians engaged in making stations in other colonies have anticipated a good deal of this, and there will not be the considerable relief from the late Victorian loan which in some quarters was anticipated.

A boy, eight years of age, son of the Rev. C. M. Yelland, of Fitzroy, was accidentally poisoned on Saturday evening. He was suffering from scarlet fever, and the mother accidentally administered a dose of carbolic acid which was in the room for disinfecting purposes, instead of the proper mixture. The mistake was immediately discovered, and the doctor sent for, but the boy died in a few minutes.

Arthur Whitefoot, 52 years of age, whilst working at Williamstown Rifle Butts, on Saturday, was shot through the leg above the knee. He was crossing in front of the target, and the flag was not observed by the marksmen. Whitefoot was removed to the hospital. His injuries are not considered dangerous.

The Souter Johnny Hotel, Hotham, was broken into early yesterday morning, and jewellery and money to the value of £64 were stolen.

At the sitting of the Tariff Commission at Lancefield on Saturday several farmers declared against malting barley in bond. Mr. Mirams, chairman of the commission, took considerable trouble to point out to the witnesses that the interests of the Victorian farmers would not be affected, as the malted barley would be re-shipped without entering into competition with Victorian products. Nearly all the witnesses, on learning the facts, withdrew their objections. The commission do not intend to take further evidence.

If possible Mr. Mirams, M.L.A., who is appointed a delegate to represent the Congregational Union of Victoria at the Jubilee Conference in Sydney, will leave on Monday morning.

A telegram was despatched to Mr. Berry, on Saturday, on behalf of the Government, urging him to arrive at a settlement with regard to changing stations for intercolonial railway before leaving Sydney.

The Minister of Railways has refused to sanction the presentation of a money testimonial from the officers of the Railway Department to Mr. Anderson, the general traffic manager, who is about to proceed to Europe on leave of absence, on the grounds that it would place Mr. Anderson in a false position. A large sum had been subscribed, and it must now be returned to the subscribers.

Bishop Selwyn preached three sermons to-day in aid of the Melanesian mission. There was a crowded congregation on each occasion.

The weather is clear and frosty.

The Windermere, which grounded in American River, Kangaroo Island, on Thursday night, was towed off by the Yatala (s.) on Saturday, and proceeded on her voyage. She sustained no damage.

The Hon. Thomas Playford returned on Saturday by the South Australian, after a trip to Europe, England, and America.

The Government has decided to allow German immigrants to take land order warrants at Hamburg without the necessity, as heretofore, of going to London personally and seeing the Agent-General.

At the inquest at Port Adelaide on Saturday, on the woman Bastian, who committed suicide last week, it appears that she had been drinking somewhat heavily before her death. There being peculiar circumstances in connection with the case the inquest was adjourned, the coroner promising to make a searching inquiry.

The Chief Secretary visited Sir Arthur Kennedy aboard the Orient on Saturday morning, in order to give official recognition to his presence. In the afternoon Miss Kennedy, who was a guest at Government House on Friday night, went with Sir Wm. Robinson to the Semaphore by special train, and was received with cheers on arrival. She embarked by special steam launch for the Orient, and Sir William Robinson returned just before the vessel steamed away for London.

The Cicero, which, like the Windermere, was bound for Newcastle, stranded whilst being towed out near the inner bar on Saturday, but was got off uninjured with the assistance of the tugs.

The Riverton Rifle Company fired matches during the two last Saturdays between English, Irish, and Scotch teams, firing on the same days at home. The Riverton team, 10 firing, made 882 on one day and 870 on the next; and the result of the English firing is awaited by mail eagerly.

At the North Adelaide Congregational Church to-night the Rev. O. Copland preached against gambling in connection with the Adelaide races. There was a crowded congregation. The preacher contended that racing fostered this immorality of gambling, that racing would not exist without gambling, and that the Legislature and those who uphold the sport encouraged a great national sin. He deprecated the support given to it by the Governor, Sir Thomas Elder, and other leading colonists, and denounced the totalisator as encouraging gambling. All the seats in the church were thrown open as free, so as to encourage all classes to attend on the same footing. There was a great crowd in consequence. Whilst deprecating the connection of prominent colonists with the turf, he referred appreciatively to the fact that men like Sir Hercules Robinson and Sir Thomas Elder were never known to bet at a race meeting.

The farmers at Auburn, on Saturday, were addressed by Messrs. Bright and Bosworth, members of Parliament, on the Land Act of last session. They denounced it as a swindle and an injustice to the majority of colonists, and likely to cost the Government half a million of money in concessions before the end of the year.

THE POST OFFICE CARVINGS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—An evidently inspired writer in your columns having furnished a key to the grotesque carvings on the Pitt-street frontage of the Post Office, permit me to protest against being held up to everlasting ridicule by the so-called effigy of "a substantial man of business or shipping clerk." The masquerading intent with a cut-down bell-topper may be satisfactory to the æsthetic president of the Chamber of Commerce, who loves "dirty boys," as a representative of the former class, but I utterly object to its being handed down to posterity as the type of

SOUTH AUSTRALIAN JOCKEY CLUB MEETING.

ADELAIDE, Saturday.

There was splendid weather for the third day's racing of the South Australian Jockey Club Autumn Meeting. The attendance was large, and Lady Robinson and suite and the Chief Secretary were present. The racing as a whole was very good, but the victory of Colstoun was very unpopular.

was afraid the latter named boat would not be in commission next year. He referred to the victory of the Doris in congratulatory terms. Captain Hixson proposed the toast of "Prosperity to the Prince Alfred Yacht Club." The club should remember that the victory of the Doris was the only victory in any sport, so far as he could remember, this colony had this season secured against our neighbour Victoria. Alluding to the eight-oar boat competition, he said that he had not a word to urge against the Victorian crew, but he had heard it said lately that our men had scarcely had fair play. (Oh, oh.) Well, our young fellows had been performing their ordinary daily duties up to the day previous to that on which the race took place, and it was scarcely fair to put them in a boat and expect them to beat men who had been actively training and doing nothing else all day for some time before. We should take more care in the future to try and secure victory. Mr. V. Brown, hon. secretary, returned thanks on behalf of the club. He referred to the proposed club house, in which scheme the Royal Sydney Yachting Club had kindly consented to join. Arrangements for club conveniences and the supply of English and Colonial yachting magazines would be made, and it was hoped that the club rooms would supply a long felt want among yachting men. During the past year the club had added the names of 30 new members to its roll, a marked proof of progress. He hoped the day was not far distant when we would not only have intercolonial yacht races, but that our yachts would compete in great national contests. (Hear, hear.) Mr. Greville proposed the toast of "Our Visitors," to which Mr. J. B. Graham, late owner of the yacht Australian, responded. The toast of "The Ladies" was proposed by Colonel Raymond, and responded to by Messrs. Love, junr., F. Smythe, and W. Cope. Dr. Milford proposed the health of the Victorian Yacht Club, and referred in warm terms to the hospitality extended by that body to yachting visitors from this colony. Dr. Marano proposed the toast of "The Press," to which the representatives present of the daily newspapers responded. After an hour spent in strolling, and outdoor sports, sail was set and the yachtsmen and visitors returned to Sydney.

EASTERN SUBURBS AMATEUR ATHLETIC CLUB.

The Eastern Suburbs Amateur Athletic Club held their second amateur meeting on the Association Cricket Ground, Moore Park, on Saturday afternoon. There was a clear atmosphere and an invigorating southerly wind, but there was a certain amount of uncertainty about the weather which would not be conducive to a large attendance. Despite the unsettled character of the weather, however, there was a large concourse of people, estimated at between 3000 to 4000, and the grand stand was well patronized. The Hon. John Marks, and other members of the Legislature, who evince an interest in athletic sports, were in the pavilion; and at about 3 o'clock his Excellency the Governor and Lady Loftus, accompanied by the private secretary, arrived. The vice-regal party stayed for a considerable time. Although the club has not been in existence very long, it is full of vitality, as was evidenced by the able manner in which all the arrangements connected with the arrangements connected with the sports were carried out. The large attendance was doubtless due in no small measure to the influence exerted by members of the club, but it cannot be denied that many of the visitors entered the grounds in order to enjoy the privilege of hearing the performances of the City Band, under the conductorship of Mr. Sebastian Hodge. The programme, embracing some pieces of composition which, we understand, were performed in this city for the first time, was as follows:—March, "Belphegor," Bresparent; overture, "Schubert," Suppe; waltz, "Venetia," Caroline Louthian; selection, "Ernani," Verdi; quadrille, "Inspiration," Smith; polka, "The Holly Bush." D. Godfrey; waltz, "Immortelles," Gung'l; galop, "Always Joyful," Hecker; quick march, "Precious;" finale, "God Save the Queen." Although the wind was too strong to allow of all the beauties of the performances reaching the visitors to the grand stand, the music was very delightful, and the performers were frequently rewarded with very hearty applause. The programme consisted of some 16 events, most of which were keenly contested. Admirable time was kept in starting all the events, and it was fortunate that it was so, as just before the conclusion of the sports the sky assumed a very gloomy aspect, and the atmosphere became piercingly cold. The following is the list of winners, &c.:—

One Mile Walking Match; open to those who had never won a walking match.—G. M. Robinson, 1; G. L. M'Cready, 2. Five competitors. Time, 8 minutes 13 8-10 seconds.

100 Yards Flat Race; open to those who had never won a race.—D. Viles, 1; F. Earle, 2; E. M. Farrell, 3. Won by two yards. Time, 10 6-10 seconds. Twelve competitors.

200 Yards Schools' Flat Race.—G. Hayes, 1; J. Parker, 2. A good race. Won by Hayes by two yards. Time, 23 seconds.

One Mile Handicap Maiden Bicycle Race.—W. J. Paterson, Sydney B. C., scratch, 1; W. H. Laster, Sydney B. C., 75 yards, 2; H. G. Lamb, Suburban B. C., 150 yards, 3. Three other competitors. Won easily by Patterson. Time, 4 minutes 12 3-10 seconds.

100 Yards Flat Race.—F. W. Baylis, 1; E. A. Grainger, 2. Four other competitors. Time, 10 2-10 seconds.

Half-Mile Flat Race; open to those who had never won a race. Won by F. W. Tibbits. Ten other competitors. Time, 2 minutes 20 1-10 seconds.

150 Yards Handicap Flat Race; run in heats.—First heat: E. A. Grainger, 1; F. G. Russell, 2. Second heat: F. W. Baylis, 1; C. J. Pattison, 2. Third heat: Baylis and Grainger a dead heat. Baylis allowed Grainger to run over the course alone and become the winner. Time for the first and second heats, 15 1-10 seconds; and for the third heat, 15 seconds.

1000 Yards Flat Race for the Challenge Cup, to be won twice in succession.—Holder before the event, Mr. A. H. Macarthur.—J. Parker, 1; A. H. Macarthur, 2. C. Jennings also started, but gave up after the first lap. Parker led and was never caught. Time, 2 minutes 31 1-10 seconds.

120 Yards Handicap Hurdle Race.—As there were five competitors and only four hurdles abreast, it was decided to send Hill, Richards, M'Grade, and Hughes for the first heat, leaving Flig to form one of the competitors who ran in the second heat. First heat—H. B. Hughes, owes six yards, 1; R. B. Hill, scratch, 2. Time, 19 3-10 seconds. Second heat—Hughes, 1; Flig, 2. Time, 19 seconds. Won by Hughes.

Two Miles Handicap Walking Match.—Won by G. M. Robinson. A. Jones (scratch) and F. Maddox (30 seconds) also competed. Towards the conclusion the event created a considerable amount of excitement. Maddox put on a grand spurt, and succeeded in getting a good lead. Passing the pavilion, G. M. Robinson put on a spurt, rapidly regained upon his rival, and was about to outstrip him, when both breasted the tape. Although both men seemed then to be on equal terms, it was Maddox who was the first to actually reach the tape. As Maddox had accomplished this feat by converting his two last strides into springs, he was disqualified and Robinson held to be the winner. Time, 17 minutes 26 2-10 seconds.

440 Yards Handicap Flat Race.—J. Parker, scratch, 1; A. M. S. Cansdell, 25 yards, 2; W. E. Elian, 25 yards, 3. Elian led till near home, and was then passed by Parker and Cansdell, the former of whom made an excellent finish. Nice competitors. Time, 55 6-10 seconds.

150 Yards Strangers' Flat Race; open to all members of recognised amateur athletic clubs.—F. W. Baylis, 1; F. G. Russell, 2; A. Gerrard, 3. A very close finish; won by half a yard. Time, 15 seconds.

One-mile Handicap Flat Race.—W. A. Gilder, 50 yards, 1; C. J. Pattison, scratch, 2. Five competitors. Won easily. Time, 5 minutes 15 seconds.

Four Miles Handicap Bicycle Race.—A. Lee, W. B. C., scratch, 1; H. Moyse, Sub. B. C., 110 yards, 2. Eight competitors. This was a well-contested event. When commencing the last lap, Moyse had a good lead, but it was not long ere Lee put on a spurt, and where the tussel against a boisterous wind was always most severe, he proved the better rider, and rushed past his rival. Lee worked desperately with his revolving machine, and as he passed the winning post, suddenly gave evidence of exhaustion, threw up his hands, and fainted. Some friends, who were near at hand, went to his rescue, and prevented him from becoming entangled in his velocipede. Lee won by about 10 yards.

The 150 Yards Forced Handicap, which concluded the programme, was won by Russell, with Granger second.

CRICKET.

A match was played last Saturday between the Raymond Cricket Club and Strathmore Cricket Club, resulting in a drawn game greatly in favour of the former club. The scores were: Raymond C. C., 75; Strathmore C. C., 3 wickets for 4 runs. For the former the principal scorers were A. Baker, 22, and G. Watkins, 18. P. Marr was the most successful bowler for the Strathmore C. C.

The final cricket match for Boyle and Scott's Junior Cup was continued at Melbourne on Saturday. On the preceding Saturday North Fitzroy scored 105 in the first innings, and yesterday the Capulets lost nine wickets for 84 runs.

Our Melbourne correspondent telegraphs:—A match, Essendon against Melbourne, the first important football event of the season, was played on the Melbourne ground on Saturday, and attracted a very large attendance. The play throughout was very good, and the match resulted in a victory for Essendon, who obtained 5 goals 14 behinds against Melbourne's 2 goals and 5 behinds.

With regard to the Five Mile Bicycle Race which was run on Saturday, 5th instant, and in which Wood and M'Rae ran, it has, we learn, been decided to run the race over again.

The London Globe says:—"When a Russian Prince and Minister of State recently missed from one of the pockets of his overcoat a purse containing 30,000 roubles, it was the easiest thing in the world for him to call in the grand master of the St. Petersburg police and hold that official responsible for the recovery of the money. Yet it was with considerable surprise that a few days afterwards the Prince received from the grand master the missing sum almost intact, and on turning to another pocket of his coat discovered what had never been stolen—his original purse and money. The Russian police are the finest detectives in the world."

DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL.—"With strumous and emaciated subjects, and where the general health is impaired," observes Sir Henry Marsh, Bart., M.D., Physician to the Queen in Ireland, "the reviving and reanimating effects of a regular daily course of this animal Oil are highly satisfactory. Its favourable action on the system is renovating; it checks progressive emaciation, restores the yielding health, rebuilds, as it were, the tottering frame, and brings about a most remarkable and salutary change in all the vital functions." Sold only in capsuled imperial half-pints, pints, and quarts, by all chemists. Sole Consignees, Ansar, Hartford, and Co., 77, Strand, London, Agents at Sydney. Elliott Brothers.—[ADVT.]

THE SYDNEY DAIRIES.

On Friday last no fewer than 15 keepers of cowyards and dairies in Sydney were fined at the Water Police Court for having filthy premises. In only two cases was the fine less than five guineas, and in two others it was £10 5s. These facts indicate a very objectionable state of affairs in relation to a large portion of our milk supply, and an inspection of some of the places where cows are kept, and from which milk is distributed through the city, forcibly points to the great danger many of these dairies are to the health of the community, and the necessity for removing the whole of them outside the city boundaries and placing them under constant and strict supervision. Accompanied by Inspector Seymour, a reporter from this office visited a large number of the city dairies—or cowyards, for in most instances there is little or no sign of a dairy to be seen—and the spectacle which many of them presented was sufficient to induce almost anyone to abjure the drinking of milk for ever.

In the centre of a low-lying paddock, which is the receptacle for heaps of rubbish, part of which is taken from the filthy open sewer that receives the drainage of much of the southern portion of the city and that is known as Shea's Creek, with this sewer itself running close by and through the paddock, and in the midst of a locality which to all appearance is one of the favourite haunts of fever—with typhoid fever, in fact, at no greater distance away than a few yards—is a tumbledown structure, half yard and half shed, where five cows are kept. The place is very old, very much out of repair, and very dirty. Just outside the cowyard, and in the paddock, is a well from which water is obtained to mix the cow's feed and for the cows to drink, and, it may be, at times, to wash some of the milking cans and buckets. The well has been formed by sinking into the ground an old barrel, and its covering is an old wooden case. But the most noticeable thing about the well is the water it contains, for the surface of the water is covered with a frothy scum, which gives the well the appearance of a cesspit. With this scum driven to the sides of the barrel, in the desire to raise some of the fluid as clean as possible, the water may be brought up better than it looks; but even then it is very objectionable; and to make things worse, there is, quite close to the well, and on higher ground, a large heap of cow and horse manure, which has the appearance of never being properly cleaned away, and which, whenever rain falls, must drain into the well. In a house a few yards away from the cowyard a child is either very ill or recovering from typhoid fever; and 12 months ago the occupant of the house lost his wife from the same disease.

It was recently stated that most of the cases of typhoid fever received at the hospitals during the present outbreak of the disease have come from the neighbourhood around Sussex and Kent streets. In a street in that quarter of the city there is to be found one of the filthiest of the cowyards, and in this yard there are living a young woman who has just recovered from typhoid fever, and a child who seems to be sickening for it. The cowshed is an old rotting structure of weatherboards, with an uneven floor of stone flagging, and when seen was in a very unclean condition; but bad as the cowshed was the cows were worse. They were so ill-nourished that they were little better than bones with the hide for a covering, and they were so unclean that quantities of manure had, after days, perhaps weeks, of accumulation, caked hard to their hides and tails, and even to their udders—if the very scanty signs of any part of the animals from which milk might be obtained can be called by that name. To judge from their appearance they were in the habit of lying down in the filth upon the floor of the cowshed, and were never cleaned. One cow had a sore upon a portion of its carcase, and all the cows seemed to have had the habit of whisking their tails, loaded with filth, from side to side, and while adding to the coating on their hides, probably scattering not a little into the milk-pails. Immediately in front of the cowshed is the closet, a patent one, but, as no water has been laid on to it, as bad as a common cesspit. A drain runs from the vicinity of the closet towards the cowshed, and the drainage from the house where the typhoid fever has been goes in the same direction. This house is one in the last stages of decay, where some of the people occupying it live in small, rotting, unwholesome rooms from which disease if it once enter is never likely to be got rid of until the whole building is raged, and it and its surroundings swept away. The pale, sickly, thin face and short-cut hair of the girl living in part of the house suggested at once the question, "Have you had the fever?" and she said, "Yes, sir, I had a touch of the typhoid," and then, in response to How long ago?" "Two months." The cans used for the milk obtained from these cows are kept in a house on the opposite side of the street where the cow-owner and his family live. The cans looked clean, but the room in which they are kept is a musty dirty place, filled to repletion with a heterogeneous collection of articles, including household furniture, a large quantity of boots and shoes, and one or two sewing machines. The odour from the boots and shoes was very strong, and generally the place had an unwholesome smell, and an unwholesome ill-kept aspect. The cowkeeper, conscious of the objectionable condition in which his cowyard is kept, and fearing the police court, began to say that he would not be there another three months. "I intended a month ago to give it up altogether, now I see the way things is going," he remarked, and then, as we were leaving, he said confidently, "I'm going out of this very soon; if you see anything this morning about the place, you can overlook it this time.—do you understand?"

Another yard where cows are kept and milked is controlled by a man who has undergone, it is said, 18 months' imprisonment, besides being fined at different times for having dirty premises. His presence at the Police Court became so frequent that he left off paying the amount of the fine inflicted upon him and submitted to the alternative sentence of imprisonment, and in that manner has passed different periods, amounting in all to 18 months, in gaol. From all appearance he is in no sense a man likely to keep his premises clean, and his wife is no better. The cowyard adjoins the house in which they live, and there is not even a shed in the yard to shelter the cows. "You cannot do everything at once," said the woman in allusion to this, and yet she and her husband have been keeping the cows there for at least two years. In this place also the yard was unclean, with an offensive manure heap in one part of it, and scarcely the vestige of a sign of care in keeping the place free from impurities. The cows were away, but in their absence the house in which the man and his wife live, presented features conspicuous enough to attract attention. Dirty, smoke-begrimed, unwholesome, stuffed with old furniture, bedding, and wearing apparel, which made the atmosphere heavy with an unhealthy smell, the two small rooms and a garret, which comprise the house, were more than enough to very quickly destroy the health of anyone not used to such a habitation, and undoubtedly sufficient to seriously affect any milk that might be kept indoors. The husband, who one would suppose should have something to say about he manner in which the place is kept, said nothing, but with an unshaven, bloated face, full of the signs of habitual intoxication, he stolidly and monotonously wheeled a barrow from one place where manure and filth were to be seen, to another place where the manure was evidently kept in a great heap until it was removed from the yard. Just as we were leaving, the old woman was very anxious to know what amount another cowkeeper in the neighbourhood had been fined on the previous Friday. She was told £5 or £10. "Oh lord," she exclaimed, in genuine astonishment and alarm, "what'll become o'me! Oh, murder, murder, murder!" And we left her bemoaning the possibilities of her own fate.

One of the most extraordinary places in which cows are kept is in the southern portion of the city. The animals are to be seen in what cannot be called with truth a cow yard, for it has all the appearance of a cellar. You enter it by means of steps which you descend, after having opened a door which communicates with the street pavement, and there, below the level of the street, in an old dirty irregularly-paved enclosure foul with a stench from the uncovered mouth of a drain and from a closet were found two diminutive scraggy looking cows chained by the neck to the wall, or to some part of the cellar or its fixtures. How the animals live there, and it is said they never leave the place, though this the cowkeeper declares is untrue, is a question it would be very difficult to answer. The place is not much bigger than an ordinary house cellar, it is situated immediately beneath what appears to be a part of the house where the cowkeeper and his family live: and cows, closet, drain, stench, and milk must be continually mixed together. Not even the manure is taken away, but as it accumulates on and among the irregularities of the stone flagging the man, getting a small shovel and a bricklayer's trowel, takes it up with the trowel as a bricklayer would take up mortar and then throws it into the drain, from which it is washed into the common sewer. Wretched in the extreme as is the lodging of the cows, the miserable animals are anything but properly fed. Adjoining the place where they are is a cellar which is more immediately under the house. The floor of that cellar was covered with a quantity of green stuff, consisting of the sweepings from beneath the stalls at the Belmore Markets. There were fragments of cabbage leaves, carrot tops, broken pieces of carrots, and other vegetables, bits of ferns and grass, and the whole was spread over the cellar floor to keep it, as the cowkeeper said, from "fomenting." This mixture and dry sugar bags, apparently without a particle of sustenance about them, are the chief food of the cows. The sugar-bags appear to figure very largely in the cow feed, for on asking the cowkeeper to show the chaff which he gave the cows to eat he put some celery stalks and tops and a large sugar bag into the box of a chaffcutting machine and set the knife in motion, and the proportion of sliced sugar bag seemed considerably larger than the proportion of celery. With regard to the cowkeeper and his family they all, as might be expected, present anything but a healthy appearance. They are sallow-faced and sickly looking, and the wife, who seems to be in the worst health of all, complains of various kinds of illness from which she suffers, while she pleaded against any proceedings being taken with respect to the premises.

Other instances not quite so bad as the foregoing, but in many ways pointing to the very objectionable state in which most of the city cowyards and dairies are kept, were met with in this tour of inspection. Badly constructed, ill-paved, ineffectually drained, small, confined, and exceedingly dirty yards were common, and in several cases the cows were animals which from all appearance were anything but such as should contribute to our milk supply. In almost every instance the cowyard is so closely surrounded by habitations as to be seriously exposed to danger from impure drainage, and from the outbreak of disease in unwholesome or unhealthy houses. The milk-tins at all the dairies visited appeared to be clean, and so far as was noticed there was nothing more objectionable about any of them than some stale milk. But there is no saying where at many of the cowyards the milk is kept, and if it be kept in some of the houses that were examined it can scarcely escape being made unwholesome. In other instances than those mentioned above signs of sickness were found; and in two of these additional instances typhoid fever had existed. The majority of the cowkeepers appear to be people who have no idea of cleanliness, unless it be enforced at the police court by fine or imprisonment. Those who do keep their premises clean—and there are some who do this, and who keep very good cows—have not sufficient space to conduct their operations properly, and they are always running the risks which are inseparable from closely confined yards. A dairy which has the name of being one of the best in the city, well kept and possessed of a herd of very fine cows, but which is in the midst of a populous neighbourhood, had typhoid fever within two doors of it a few weeks ago, and the house where the fever broke out was on a higher level than the dairy, a circumstance that suggests an unpleasant thought with respect to drainage. One very objectionable feature in relation to the city dairies is the impossibility of turning the cows into paddocks where they can find any grass. In those cases where they are driven out of the cowyards for a part of the day, they are taken to some place which is either as bare and dry as a road, or as wet and muddy as a bog, or they depasture among rubbish heaps, as many do about Rushcutter Bay. All the feed they get they receive in the cowyards, when they are driven in to be milked; and as many of the cowkeepers cannot afford to spend much upon feed, the cows at many of the dairies become lean, wretched, and unsightly looking. Outside the town the dairies seem to improve, and the improvement appears to be due to the circumstance of there being more space available in the yards, and a place somewhere apart from the cowyards for the animals to run in and find a little grass. For the reason that they possess these advantages, some of the dairies at Pyrmont have a very cleanly appearance; but even at Pyrmont places were met with quite as bad as the general number of the dairies in the central part of the city.

LECTURES.

EXPERIMENTAL PHYSICS.

On Friday last Mr. J. G. Legge delivered the first of a series of lectures on Experimental Physics, under the auspices of the Technical College, at the Mechanics' School of Arts. Mr. F. Bevill introduced the lecturer, who was assisted in some of the experiments by Mr. Brear. Mr. Legge commenced by describing the three states of matter, solid, liquid, and gaseous, illustrating the qualities they severally possess by simple experiments. He then touched lightly upon what is known as the molecular theory, which asserts that all matter is composed of molecules, more or less influenced by the attraction of cohesion. By way of illustration he cited Sir W. Thompson's statement that if a drop of water were magnified so as to appear the size of the earth, the molecules would then vary in size between shot and cricket balls. Upon this theory is explained the fact that salt, dissolved in water, does not increase the bulk of the liquid; the salt, in reality, filling up the interstices between the water molecules. The lecturer then dealt with vibratory motion in connection with sound, heat, and light. Treating of sound, it was pointed out that the rapid vibration of any body—as, for instance, a tuning-fork—produces sound waves, while on the other hand the vibration of the molecules of matter originate heat and light waves. The decomposition of a ray of light, passing through a prism into its elements, was well explained by reference to diagrams of the solar spectrum. The latter portion of the lecture was devoted to the subject of electricity and magnetism, the principal features of which were illustrated by a series of experiments. Among these may be mentioned the application of electro-magnetism to machinery, as exemplified by a pump, and also the principle of the Edison light, which depends upon the resistance offered by wires of platinum or carbon to the passage of the electric current. During the course of the lecture Mr. Legge conducted a number of experiments, which were favourably received by the audience; the ball being very fairly filled, considering the inclemency of the weather. The next lecture, on Sound, was announced for Friday, the 18th instant.

THE BRITISH MUSEUM.

A reading was given on Saturday night in connection with the Sydney Mechanics' Technical College, on the subject of the British Museum, by a member of the committee. The large and magnificent building, with its collection of natural and scientific curiosities, and its works of art was well described, and to add to the interest which was attached to the reading, a number of fine lantern illustrations depicting the different departments in the Museum, and their contents, was successfully displayed.

The first lecture of the winter course under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association will be delivered in the Protestant Hall this (Monday) evening, by Rev. M. Archdall, M.A., Balmain. Subject,—"The Reformation and Rationalism."

FIRE IN SUSSEX-STREET.

Yesterday morning a row of seven galvanised iron buildings on the east side of Sussex-street, between Market and Druitt streets, was completely destroyed by fire. It broke out on the premises at 239, Sussex-street, occupied by Messrs. Scolling Brothers, commission agents, and had obtained a good hold when it was observed by Messrs. Miller and Harrison's night watchman. This was about 25 minutes past 5. He immediately ran round to the Insurance Fire Brigade Station and gave the alarm; notice was given by telephone to the Town Hall, and the turncock despatched immediately. He reached the scene of the fire just before the Insurance Brigade's engine, and a good supply of water was available from the start. The engines of most of the city and suburban brigades arrived, and the firemen worked well together. A good stream of water was got on the fire, but in spite of all efforts it extended rapidly on both sides, and could not be checked till the following buildings had also caught:—No. 241, occupied by Newby and Newton, commission agents; No. 243, Caldwell and Howe, produce merchants; No. 237, T. Delobery, dealer; No. 235, T. R. Manley, plumber; No. 233, R. Marshall, commission agent; No. 231, R. Wilkinson and Son, timber merchants. All the places were totally destroyed. A blacksmith's shop, occupied by C. Coles, at No. 245, was slightly damaged. The office of Messrs. Wilkinson and Son escaped almost untouched, but their shed at the rear of No. 233, containing timber and joinery, was considerably damaged. A large quantity of timber belonging to this firm was stacked right along under all the destroyed houses, and this, of course, bears marks of the fire, a considerable part of it being rendered worthless, and a great deal more partly charred. Mr. Delobery, together with another man, was sleeping on his premises when the fire broke out, and was awakened by the crackling of the flames. He called his companion, and they made their escape without any difficulty. The fire was eventually got under control a little before 7 o'clock, though the last sparks were not extinguished till about midday. The whole of the buildings were insured in the City Mutual Insurance Company for £500. The insurances on Messrs. Scolling Brothers' stock and that of Mr. Marshall are unknown. Messrs. Newby and Newton, and Mr. Delobery are uninsured. Messrs. Caldwell and Howe's stock was covered by a policy in the City Mutual for £100, Mr. Manley's in the United for £250, and Messrs. Wilkinson and Son were insured in the City Mutual for £200, in the Lion for £500, and in the United for £500.

LAW REPORT.

SUPREME COURT.—FRIDAY, MAY 11.

SECOND TERM, 1883.

Banco Court.—(Before their Honors the CHIEF JUSTICE and Sir G. INNES.)

BARRACLOUGH V. ORIENT STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY.

This was an appeal from the decision of Mr. District Court Judge Wilkinson. The plaint, so far as material to this report, was on a bill of lading by which the defendants promised to deliver, at the port of Sydney, to order or assigns, a case of books shipped at London on board the s.s. Austral. On 30th June the vessel commenced discharging at the Circular Quay, and there was evidence that the case was seen on the wharf. On 12th July the plaintiff received from the consignor the bill of lading endorsed to him; on 14th of July he obtained a delivery order, and paid freight. The goods, however, could not be found, having been lost or stolen while on the wharf. There was evidence that the Circular Quay was an accustomed and a convenient wharf.

The Judge gave a verdict for the plaintiff, damages £10, and found specially (1) that the plaintiff had no notice—except general notice by advertisement, which it appears was given: (2) that the case was never in the power or dominion of the consignee because of existing lien for freight; (3) that defendants had not taken proper care of the goods on the wharf.

Mr. Darley, Q.C., and Mr. Nash, instructed by Messrs. Salter and Barker, appeared for the defendants, to move for a new trial on the grounds—1. That according to the true construction of the bill of lading the defendants were not liable after tendering the goods at the wharf at Sydney. 2. That the plaintiff was not ready to take delivery within reasonable time, and was guilty of laches discontinuing him to maintain this action. 3. That the notices to consignees in evidence were sufficient notice to the plaintiff.

After full argument the following judgments were delivered:—

The CHIEF JUSTICE said this was an action brought in the District Court, Sydney, against the defendants, to recover damages for the loss of certain books shipped on board the defendants' vessel, to be carried from London to the port of Sydney, under a bill of lading which, among other things, contains this stipulation:—"Consignees, or their assigns, must be ready to take delivery of goods as soon as the ship is ready to discharge them, otherwise master or agent shall be at liberty to land and warehouse the goods, or discharge them into a store ship, or hulk, or into lighters, or on a wharf as customary, at the merchant's risk and expense." The plaintiff brought his action on that contract, and in his plaint he stated that the defendants promised that the goods shipped under the bill of lading should be delivered in Sydney to the order of the plaintiff, or to his assigns, he or they paying freight for the same. The performance of conditions precedent is then stated generally, and then the plaint goes on to say that the said goods were not delivered to the plaintiff at Sydney as aforesaid. At the hearing of the case before the District Court Judge, it was proved that on the arrival of the vessel in Sydney these goods were landed at Circular Quay, and there was evidence that this is a customary and convenient place to land goods. But although the case was proved to have been landed there from this vessel, yet when the plaintiff passed an entry and went to obtain possession, it was not forthcoming: it had been stolen or lost from the wharf. On this state of things being proved, a motion was made for a nonsuit. The Judge declined to nonsuit, and gave a verdict for plaintiffs, and found that the case was never in the power or dominion of the consignee, because of existing lien for freight, and "that defendants had not taken proper care of the goods on the wharf." By the bill of lading freight was stipulated to be paid amounting to £1 8s. 1d. There can be no doubt that the shipowners had a lien on these goods for the amount of that freight; they were not bound to deliver up the case until such freight was paid. There can be no question that, in order to constitute a delivery under a contract of this sort, there must be proof that the goods in question were delivered on the wharf in such a way as to be within the dominion of the owner—that we have held distinctly in two cases, following the authority of a case which was most stoutly contested in the Common Pleas, Exchequer Chamber, and in the House of Lords; and the principle on which we have acted is clearly laid down. In order to constitute delivery, the case must be placed within the dominion of the consignee; but if there is delivery so as to be within his dominion, the liability of the shipowner is discharged. In this case the Judge below held that the case was never in the power or dominion of the consignee, because of the existing lien. This is a matter of very great moment; the amount involved here is only a matter of £10, unimportant to the defendants, although the points involved are of considerable public importance, and the plaintiff is no doubt interested in respect to the costs involved in the prosecution of this claim. During the progress of the argument I have again looked into the authorities cited in the former cases. My mind has fluctuated considerably while the case was going on, but I have come to the conclusion, and I am now clearly of opinion that my own judgment is a correct one, that the case was within the dominion of the plaintiff, and I show it in this way. By this contract the shipowner was bound carefully, and without any negligence, to carry this case to this port; he was bound to deliver it, and was entitled to demand payment of freight. If he did not deliver directly, he was bound, at all events, to place it on some customary wharf at a convenient time after the arrival of the vessel, in such a way that it should be within the dominion of the person owning it. It appears to me that this was done; the defendants could do nothing more under the contract to deliver it than they have done. Whether the plaintiff got it or not depended on himself; he could go for it or send for it if it was within his power; it was delivered on a wharf to be within his dominion, and he could send his dray and take the case away, the defendants having done all they could do by placing the case so that the plaintiff could remove it. It does not matter that he might have been met by the wharfinger and asked to pay the freight, he could take the case away on paying the freight. It was open to him to do so on making that payment, and the case was within his dominion, and therefore there was a delivery by placing it on the wharf. I think that the Judge below took a wrong view of the law, and that a new trial should be granted.

Sir GEORGE INNES, J., said: I am of opinion that the rule must be made absolute for a new trial, and for the reasons stated by his Honor the Chief Justice. The plaintiff here was, so far as any action of the shipowner can be said to have interfered with him, master of the situation. It was through no default of the shipowners that actual possession was taken by him of this case. The shipowners discharged their obligations under the bill of lading, when, after notice, they discharged this case on an accustomed wharf, landing it over the ship's side, and placing it on an accustomed wharf. From that moment, so far as the shipowners were concerned, the goods were entirely within the dominion of the consignee. It matters not that, by reason of the plaintiff not having had the bill of lading, he was not ready then to take delivery; he was responsible for the negligence of the shipper in not sending to him the bill of lading earlier. If in no way continues the responsibility under the bill of lading that the plaintiff was not ready, when the goods were landed, to take delivery. Under the particular clause in the bill of lading to which reference has been made, the consignees are "to take delivery of goods as soon as the ship is ready to discharge them." Within the meaning of that clause the defendants discharged their obligation as soon as they landed the goods on the accustomed wharf; and the defendants, in my opinion, had entirely got rid of their liability under the bill of lading at that time; their possession was simply this, that the goods were there within the control and dominion of the consignee, if he should fulfil his part of the contract; and if he should do so, there was no right of the shipowner to withhold possession or exercise any control over the goods, the only right of the shipowner was a right of lien, which he might not have exercised; so far as the right of the consignee was concerned to take the goods away, it was complete the moment they were landed at the wharf. The case of Meyerstein v. Barber, relied upon by Dr. Sly, as his Honor has pointed out, was very stoutly contested up to the House of Lords; the judgments all agree, and unless the circumstances of that case are closely looked at, particular passages in it would appear to give very great support to the contention of Dr. Sly. That case was followed to a certain extent in Virgo v. Cook, but Virgo v. Cook is clearly not in point in this case, except that so far as the principles involved it is in favour of the defendants. Meyerstein v. Barber was not a case of a contest between the shipowner and consignee, but between two persons, both claiming under the bill of lading, and irrespective of the rights and liabilities of the shipowner; and although there are general observations in that case of what constitutes delivery, they only mean this, when looked at with reference to the circumstances of that case, that the bill of lading itself remains operative to carry with it the right of property and of possession to the goods named in it, and remains a symbol of property up to a period which had not been reached in the circumstances of that case. The possession of the shipowner as against the holder of the bill of lading was not in question there. There is a passage in the judgment of Willis, J., to the effect that the shipowner is not exonerated when there is negligence. I am of opinion that the right to recover for negligence does not exist in this case, there having been a complete discharge of the obligation of the shipowner under the bill of lading; by delivery on the wharf he got rid of all liabilities for the goods, and further responsibility could not be imposed on him except by his own assent, the goods being within the dominion of the consignee, if he chooses to perform his part of the contract.

Rule absolute for a new trial; each party to pay his own costs.

LAW NOTICES.

MR. J. E. REDMOND ON SELF-GOVERNMENT.

On Saturday afternoon, in the Opera House, Mr. J. E. Redmond, M.P., delivered an address on "Self-government Historically Considered." The chair was occupied by Mr. J. G. O'Connor. The theatre was filled in every part, and amongst those on the platform were Messrs. T. Dalton, W. T. Coonan, T. C. O'Mara, Ms.L.A.; the Rev. Denis Mahony, and Mr. William Redmond. Amongst the audience were many ladies and several Roman Catholic clergymen, also two members of the Legislative Assembly.

The CHAIRMAN said that it had again fallen to him to occupy the chair on the occasion of an address by Mr. Redmond. For him there could not be a greater honour than to accept the position on such an important occasion. He was sure Mr. Redmond would do full justice to his subject, and that nothing would be said that would give offence to the most fastidious. Since Mr. Redmond was last here, he had visited Queensland, and in every place had been received with enthusiasm. Coming back he had proceeded through the northern portion of this colony, and there also his reception had been of the most favourable character.

Mr. REDMOND, who was received with cheers, said:—The subject which I have chosen for consideration this afternoon is one which will, I think, prove of general interest, for it undoubtedly has its attractions not only to those who are desirous of seeing Ireland speedily transformed into a self-governed nation—(cheers)—but also to those who, without sympathising with Home Rule, are anxious that the present condition of poverty and discontent may be changed, and are willing to consider in the light of history and of philosophy any scheme for that end which may be proposed by responsible politicians. I have been accused by some of my critics in Sydney of being too fond of strewing my path with oratorical flowers, and of neglecting the less attractive but more solid and useful pursuit of argument and logic. Well, I intend to cast aside rhetoric now, and rely alone upon fact and precedent and argument. The question of Irish self-government is the one above all others which offers most temptation to an Irish speaker to rely upon appeals to the passion and imagination of an Irish audience. This afternoon, however, I promise to make no such appeals. I will endeavour to speak dispassionately and impartially, to look upon this question from every point of view, and weighing the arguments for and against the scheme, to see whether, after all, our demand has not a solid foundation in theoretic reasonableness, in practical advantage, as well as in reason and justice. What do I mean by Home Rule? Now I have already stated that by Home Rule I mean the restoration to Ireland of representative government—(cheers)—and I have defined representative government to mean government in accordance with the constitutionally expressed will of the majority of the people, and carried out by a ministry constitutionally responsible to those whom they govern. In other words, I mean that the internal affairs of Ireland shall be regulated by a Parliament consisting of the Queen, Lords, and Commons of Ireland—(cheers),—that all Imperial affairs, and all that relates to the colonies, foreign States, and the common interests of the Empire shall continue to be regulated by the Imperial Parliament as at present constituted. The idea at the bottom of this proposal is the desirableness of finding some middle course between separation on the one hand and over-centralisation of government on the other. We who propose this scheme consider that it is undesirable that two countries so closely connected geographically and socially, and having so many commercial and international ties, should be wholly separated, or that any dismemberment of the Empire, which Ireland has had her share in building up, should take place. (Cheers.) But we are just as strongly of opinion that it is equally undesirable that one country should control the domestic affairs of another, whose wants and aspirations it confessedly does not understand, whose various needs it admittedly has not time to attend to, and whose national life such a system of government tends to destroy. (Cheers.) We propose a middle course. We say to England,—"Retain every guarantee for the unity and strength of the Empire, but give up a task which you have proved yourself incompetent to fulfil satisfactorily. Subdivide the labours of an overburdened Parliament, and relegate to Irishmen the management of purely Irish affairs, which they alone can thoroughly understand. Let us join for every Imperial purpose and defend the Empire, which is the heritage of both of us, against all the world, in arms, if needs be, but let each give up, once and for all, the attempt to rule the domestic affairs of the other. Let us have national freedom and Imperial unity and strength." (Hear, hear.) This is the proposal of the Irish people for self-government. But you may say, "This is a very cursory definition of a general principle; what of details?" Well, as soon as the principle is conceded, the details for carrying that principle into effect may, I think, safely be left to the collective wisdom of Englishmen, Irishmen, and Scotchmen in the Imperial Parliament. (Cheers.) It is irregular and confusing to discuss details until we have decided upon the principle. Still it is perhaps reasonable to demand the opinion of some of the advocates of this scheme as to the way it would work in detail; and Mr. Isaac Butt, who was its first proposer, has left upon record a sketch of its details. These, of course, are only put forward as the individual suggestions of that gentleman, and not as essential portions of the proposal. Mr. Butt says: "As to the Crown, it is not proposed to affect its prerogatives at all. The only change would be that, in exclusively Irish matters, it would be guided by the advice of an Irish Parliament and an Irish Ministry. In all other affairs it would continue, as at present, to be guided by the advice of the Imperial Legislature. As to the Imperial Parliament, it would continue to have precisely the same supreme powers that it now possessed over all Imperial affairs—just as completely as if no Irish Parliament existed. Its jurisdiction would include every international transaction, all relations with foreign States, all questions of peace and war, the government of the colonies, the army, navy, and all that relates to the defence and stability of the Empire, control of the Imperial Customs and general trade regulations, control of expenditure and supplies for all Imperial purposes; power to levy general taxation for such purposes; charge of the public debt and the Imperial Civil List; and sovereign power within the limits of its attributions over individual citizens of both countries. Ireland should be settled beforehand in what proportion Ireland should contribute to such expenditure; with what share of the public debt it is fairly chargeable: what part of the Imperial Civil List it should pay; and taxation should be adjusted, not only as to amount, but as to mode, in such a manner that its burden would be equitably distributed throughout every part of the United Kingdom. Of course Ireland would continue to be represented in the Imperial Parliament on Imperial questions, but on these only. For all Imperial purposes the two countries would continue to be a 'United Kingdom,' and to constitute in the face of other nations one Imperial State. As to the Irish Parliament, it would have supreme control of the internal affairs of Ireland, just as if no Imperial Parliament existed. Its jurisdiction would include every exclusively Irish interest; education, agriculture, commerce, manufactures, public works, courts of justice, magistracy, public railways, post-offices, corporations, grand juries, and every other detail of Irish business and Irish national life. . . . . It would be composed of the Sovereign, Lords and Commons of Ireland. The sovereignty of both kingdoms would continue and would be declared to be indissolubly united. . . . . In respect of all exclusively Irish interests the Irish Parliament, so constituted, would rank, act, and rule as the Parliament of an independent nation." (Cheers.) Such then is the proposal in principle and detail. Now, the first thing I have a right to claim is that our proposal is not either vague or unintelligible. It is clear, precise, and abundant in detail. Secondly, I have a right to say it is not a proposal for separation. One of its essential conditions is the preservation of the unity of the Empire. The scheme is totally inconsistent with separation. A federal union and separation are entirely distinct things, and if I am to argue this matter reasonably, my opponents must not recognise and acknowledge the distinction. Thirdly, I have a right to say it is not communistic or revolutionary. (Cheers.) It aims simply at a prevention of over-centralisation, and it violates not one principle of the Constitution. I will now proceed to consider whether I am entitled to say that our proposal is a reasonable one theoretically. Let us see first whether it is a proposal judged by the test of common sense, which would seem a reasonable one to suggest as a remedy for the present deplorable condition of things in Ireland. Let us see, then, whether it bears the recommendation of political philosophy, and lastly, whether it has the sanction of successful working in other nations, and at other periods in the world's history. What are the facts as presented by the political situation of to-day? Here we have two countries, closely connected geographically and socially, but distinct in historic tradition, in religion, in national instinct and national natures; speaking the same language, and belonging to the one Empire; composed to some extent of an admixture of the same races, yet presenting to the world national characteristics as essentially distinct as any two nations in the universe. Historically Ireland is the elder. She can boast of having been a civilised and famous nation when England was a barbarous province of the Roman Empire. (Cheers.) But, long ages since, England reversed the balance, and has been rich, prosperous, and free, while Ireland was poor, miserable, and subject. For seven centuries England has more or less successfully asserted her sway; but Ireland has struggled age after age for the preservation of her nationality, and for her freedom. (Cheers.) Owen Roe O'Neill and poor Robert Emmett—(cheers)—Daniel O'Connell and Charles Stewart Parnell—(cheers)—have all struggled for the same cause. For over 600 years Ireland had her own Parliament upon Irish soil; always, it is true, more or less subject to England, but still a distinct Legislature. In 1782, Henry Grattan—(cheers)—backed by 100,000 Irish volunteers, declared that no power on earth had the right to legislate for the Irish people, save the King, Lords, and Commons of Ireland, and he enunciated the memorable doctrine—"They knew their duty to their Sovereign and they were loyal; they knew their duty to themselves and were determined to be free." (Cheers.) England yielded, and for a brief space of 18 years Ireland advanced in power and prosperity and peace with enormous strides. But a conspiracy was entered into to rob her of her liberty. The means whereby the so-called Union was carried have received the scathing denunciations of historians of all shades of political and religious feeling. It was carried by bribery and corruption and violence and murder, and it is scarcely to be wondered at that it has been the fruitful source of so much misery and heart-burning. What is morally wrong can never be politically right—(cheers)—and the accomplishment of Pitt's and Castlereagh's scheme stands forth to-day as the highest political crime and blunder of the century. (Cheers.) Since then, Ireland, in every department of her internal economy, has been ruled by England. That the system has failed requires no proof. One of the acutest thinkers of the day, Mr. Lecky, says: "Pitt's measure centralised but did not unite, or rather by uniting the Legislatures, it divided the nations." Ireland, it is true, sends a certain number of representatives to the Imperial Parliament; but they are invariably outvoted on Irish questions, and Ireland is ruled in every law of her social and political existence by Englishmen and Scotchmen. At first she was ruled brutally, but, I freely admit, Englishmen of to-day desire to do her justice—(cheers)—though they neither have time to attend to her wants, nor knowledge to understand them. The Imperial Parliament is already overburdened with all kinds of work, and day by day the pressure is growing more intolerable. Not alone Irish, but English and Scotch business is neglected, and all thoughtful politicians admit that reform is necessary. On Ireland the effect has been disastrous. She has become pauperised and depopulated. Her industries have perished, her wealthy men and her men of genius have deserted her, attracted to the centre of government; her people, despairing and disaffected, have been left a prey to men too often of desperate and criminal designs; all, all is gone, save only Ireland's imperishable faith in her ancient creed—(cheers)—and the ultimate triumph of her nationality. This is the state of affairs which, for everyone's sake, we ask Englishmen honestly to face. Surely common sense would dictate as a remedy the very scheme which we propose. Lighten the work of the Imperial Parliament. Relieve it of a task it is unfitted and unable to fulfil. Confer on Irishmen once more the rights of self-government they long enjoyed, and which they never consented to relinquish, and thereby do a good work for the Empire by making Ireland prosperous, and consequently loyal, and a good work for Ireland by giving her a chance of building up once again upon Irish soil a self-governed nation—a free and useful part of a great Empire. Let us now see if our demand is consistent with the teaching of political philosophy. I need scarcely remind my hearers that the federal system which we propose is not a new-fangled plan invented for the occasion. From the earliest civilised times down to the present day it has existed. At every period in the world's history there have been found countries so united by circumstances of geographical position, of race, and of commercial interests, that it has been their interest to be united in a common state, yet so distinct in structure—characteristics and national instincts as to make it undesirable, and, indeed, impossible to weld them into one homogeneous whole. To suit this condition of affairs federalism was invented. Let the distinguished historian, Mr. Freeman, explain to what set of circumstances it applies, and remember he speaks now without any reference to Ireland. That gentleman in his "History of Federalism" says:—"The federal system requires a sufficient degree of community in origin, or feeling, or interest, to allow the members to work together up to a certain point. It requires that there should not be that perfect degree of community, or rather identity, which allows the members to be fused together for all purposes. When there is no community at all federalism is inappropriate—the cities or states had better remain wholly independent. When community rises into identity, Federalism is equally inappropriate—the cities or states had better both sink into the counties of a kingdom. But in the intermediate set of circumstances. . . . Federalism is the true solvent. It gives as much union as the members need, and not more than they need." Surely the set of circumstances here laid down exactly describes the state of the case between England and Ireland, and surely I am justified in saying in consequence, (Hear, hear.) Let us now see if it has the sanction of successful working in other nations. The very superabundance of evidence in favour of the Federal system constitutes my chief difficulty in dealing with this portion of the subject. To deal with it fully would be to relate some of the most glorious chapters in the history of the world. The most that time will permit me to do is briefly to state a few examples taken from the past and from the present. The famed Achaian League is perhaps the most notable instance in ancient history. In the heyday of Grecian power every city was a State and every State was independent, but with the fall of Athens arose the necessity for combination, in order to withstand the power of Macedonia. The states united for a common defence, but they preserved their own internal independence, and the federal system then adopted, history tells us, arrested Hellenic decadence for centuries. In mediæval times the most striking example is perhaps that of the united provinces of the Netherlands. Here again was an instance of the desirability of union for common interests of states which it was impossible to fuse into one homogeneous whole. Here, again, federalism was found to be the true solvent. The states continued distinct and free in the government of their internal affairs, yet combined under one sovereign, with one army, for common defence. Thus, combining unity with freedom, they prospered, and thus they held their country against Spain when Spain was the mistress of the world. (Applause.) Switzerland presents an instance of federalism commencing long ages ago, and lasting successfully down to the present day. The perils of their position made it imperative for them to be united; their diversities of religion and custom, not half so marked as the diversities between England and Ireland, made centralisation an impossibility. Each community enjoys to-day Home Rule, while their combined strength is the guarantee of their political safety and social prosperity. (Applause.) The great Republic of the West is, perhaps, the greatest example at the present day of the soundness of the federal system. (Hear, hear.) It is no part of my duty to explain the American Constitution. It has its defects. Those defects, however, only appear wherever there is a divergence from the principle of federalism, and the one great fact remains that in the short space of a century these federal States have built up a great united and free nation. (Cheers.) Each State is self-governed. Each possesses its local Parliament, supreme in the management of local affairs; while the Congress watches over the national freedom and national honour of the whole, and "every American citizen," in the words of M. de Torqueville, "defends the Union because he knows that in defending it he defends the increased prosperity and freedom of his own state." (Applause.) In 1814 the federal system was adopted by Norway and Sweden, and in our own recollection Austria has conceded, after a long and bitter and useless struggle, the exact demand which the Irish people now make of England. (Applause.) But I can adduce more significant examples, examples of England herself conceding to her own dependencies the full measure of Home Rule. Here, in each one of the Australian and New Zealand colonies, you enjoy and you jealously guard the privilege of Home Rule—(applause)—and I have asked in vain from my opponents here some intelligent reason for refusing to concede to Ireland what to-day is the very cause of their own prosperity and loyalty here. (Cheers.) What England conceded to Australia, she conceded to Canada and to some 20 other portions of the Empire, while by her very side the tiny islands of Guernsey and the little Isle of Man all possess to-day what is denied to five millions and a half of her Majesty's subjects in Ireland. (Applause.) It may be objected that in none of these instances are the circumstances exactly the same as in the case of Ireland. Well, no one case in history is precisely the same as another, but honest and impartial men will recognise in all these cases a sufficient similarity to warrant my assertion that our proposal is not only recommended by common sense and political philosophy, but also by historic precedent from the earliest ages down to the present day. (Hear, hear.) Having now established the proposition that our scheme is theoretically a reasonable one, I proceed to consider whether in practice it is likely to prove advantageous, and my first proof of its probable advantage in practice is furnished by the instances I have already quoted of its successful working in other countries. (Applause.) It is for my opponents to show if they can, that what created prosperity and strengthened loyalty in Canada and Australia is likely to have a different effect in Ireland. (Applause.) It stands to reason that for a country just as for an individual man, no one can transact its business as advantageously as itself. (Hear, hear.) Unless a man or a community be mad they must understand their own business better than any one else. Deprive a man of the right of managing his own affairs, treat him as a child or a fool, and he becomes a slave: all genius, all talent, all energy, all interest in life, are killed in him. (Hear, hear.) Treat a nation in the same way, and with no sense of responsibility left to it, and you make its people reckless, you destroy public spirit, you ruin self-reliance, you kill energy and enterprise and industry. (Applause.) No nation so treated has ever prospered in the history of the world. Yet this is just the position in which you insist upon keeping Ireland. You cannot say we are unable or incapable of self-government. (Cheers.) When we did govern ourselves your own historians admit our country prospered, and we presented in the short space of 18 years to the gaze of the world and the admiration of posterity, a galaxy of great men whose names will live as long as the English tongue. (Cheers) While every day Irishmen are exhibiting their capacity for Government in helping to administer the affairs of various colonies, as by governors and statesmen, in various parts of the world. (Cheers.) There are two things necessary for the efficient fulfilment of its work by a legislative assembly—time and knowledge. Now if there be any subject upon which all men at home are agreed, it is that the House of Commons has not at its command sufficient time for the transaction of half the work which it is supposed to do. Leaving out of the question all matters of of foreign and colonial importance, there are sufficient Irish questions of importance awaiting settlement at this moment to occupy its undivided attention for several sessions. The same remark is equally true of English and Scotch affairs. When, as for the last two years, Irish questions are discussed, matters of vital consequence to Englishmen and Scotchmen are neglected; and this session Mr. Gladstone has announced his to be an English one, although he has himself admitted there are still serious evils in Ireland crying for redress. The question of the day in England, par excellence, is how to lighten the legislative work of the Imperial Parliament, and Mr. Gladstone has himself more than once recently expressed his conviction that this can only be done effectually by decentralisation of government, or, as we call it, by Home Rule. (Cheers.) But, deficient as the Imperial Parliament is in respect of time at its disposal, it is equally deficient in that knowledge which is essential to successful legislation. It is a fact, about which there can be no doubt or cavil, that the average English or Scotch member knows little or nothing of Ireland. He has never been there. He has never studied the great problems of her national life, and hence it is that time after time blunders of the most serious and sometimes ridiculous character are committed in the Irish legislation of the Government. (Hear, hear.) Its officials in Ireland are as ignorant as the Parliament. The Viceroy is an Englishman, the Chief Secretary is a Scotchman, the Under-Secretary is an Englishman, none of them ever having seen Ireland until they succeeded to offices which require the most minute and accurate knowledge. Is it to be wondered at if Irish wants are misunderstood, and can any doubt be felt as to the solid practical advantage to Ireland of the establishment of a Federal Union, whereby Irish matters would be dealt with only by those who understand them, and who are bound to the country by every tie of interest and affection? Were I to mention all those Irish interests which would directly benefit from such a change, I should enumerate every Irish industry and interest. The agricultural interest; the manufacturing interest; the railway interest; the fisheries, all languishing and neglected; the education of the country stunted, its general trade and commerce paralysed and its national life suppressed. (Applause). Sir George Gray once put it in better and more weighty words than mine when he said:—"Give to Ireland a State Legislature and a State Executive in Dublin; secure thereby the residence of its ablest men in the country; open a fair field as Ministers, legislators, orators, to its best and wisest men; afford from the same source, as would necessarily and certainly be done, occupation to Irish architects, sculptors, painters; and secure a resident aristocracy of worth, talent and wisdom; and you will at the same time restore the wealth, trade, and commerce of Dublin and Ireland. Dumb Ireland will then then speak again. Half inanimate Ireland will again awaken to national life, and breathe the breath of hope and freedom. Whilst, by again accustoming the Irish people to the management of their own affairs, and to the administrative duties of the highest order, a willing people will be educated in that political knowledge which will enable them to put an end to the ills which afflict them, the cause and cure of which none can understand so well as themselves." (Cheers.) So much for advantage to Ireland. But what of advantage to England? Is it no advantage to her to have the work of Parliament lightened, to have Ireland increasing in prosperity and peace and good government? Grattan warned Pitt that, in passing the Union, "he was pulling down one of the pillars of the British empire;" and if Irish loyalty may be considered as one of its pillars, he certainly weakened it if he did not destroy it. (Applause.) Will it be of no advantage to England to find in Ireland a loyal and contented, and friendly ally—or rather will it not be the surest guarantee of the future stability of the empire to find in her a friend as loyal as she has proved herself to be brave. (Cheers.) Mr. Lecky says:—"It appears to me perfectly evident that no Government will ever command the real affection and loyalty of the people which is not in some degree national, administered in a great measure by Irishmen and through Irish institutions. If the present discontent is ever to be checked, if the ruling power is ever to carry with it the moral weight which is essential to its success, it can only be by calling into being a strong local political feeling, directed by men who have the responsibility of property, who are attached to the Constitution, and who at the same time possess the confidence of the Irish people. As in Hungary, as in Poland, as in Belgium, national institutions will alone obtain the confidence of the nation, and any system of policy which fails to recognise this craving of the national sentiment will fail also to strike a chord of true gratitude. It may palliate, but it cannot cure. It may deal with local symptoms, but it cannot remove the chronic disease. To call into active political life the upper class of Irishmen, and to enlarge the sphere of their political work—to give, in a word, to Ireland the greatest amount of self-government that is compatible with the unity and integrity of the Empire—should be the aim of every statesman." The last time I spoke in Sydney I quoted, in support of my demand for Home Rule, a telegraphic report of a speech recently delivered by Mr. Herbert Gladstone at Leeds. The Sydney Morning Herald, the next day, accused me of deliberate misrepresentation, saying no one knew better than I did that the son of the Prime Minister, in speaking of self-government, meant simply local or municipal government, and not Home Rule. Well, I happened to know more of Mr. Gladstone's real views than the gentleman that wrote the article, and I calmly and confidently awaited the arrival of the papers with the full report. I have now received it, and for the benefit of my critics of the Herald I will read it:—"The form of government in Ireland was as bad as it could be. In his opinion it was one of the worst forms of government to be found in Europe. Centralisation was the curse of the country. The form of government should before long be radically changed, and the people allowed to manage their own affairs. No Government could claim to exist on constitutional principles which did not rest on the will and support of the people. (Applause.) The Irish Government rested on the Scotch and English majority in the British Parliament. How far ought we to go in the way of concession to Irish demands for political freedom? Every man could see that in certain cases the granting of full political freedom would lead to risks and dangers which no Government could rightly make. The converse of this was equally true. Equal laws every Liberal at once conceded to them. The more mention, however, of an Irish Parliament, of Home Rule, aroused wild cries of 'Disintegration of the Empire.' Yet, as we had given a Parliament to all our great colonies with the most beneficial results, and as we lost America through withholding elementary political institutions, in the abstract there were strong reasons for its adoption. But it was said that by granting Home Rule they would play into the hands of the Separationists, and that the Irish were hopelessly disloyal. He did not grant the latter; but, assuming it to be so, he did not think a Parliament in Dublin would endanger the Queen's authority in Ireland." I have now finished my quotations, and have only very few words more to say. There are two very popular objections to Home Rule with which I would like to deal. The first is that if Home Rule just in itself were granted we would then demand total separation the day after. (Laughter.) Now, granting Home Rule itself to be just, is that a valid argument? There are many people who believe that to-day the Irish people would separate from England entirely if they could. What prevents them? No doubt these gentlemen would reply, England's power, her army and her navy. Well, but England's power—her army and her navy—would remain, after Home Rule, just as before (hear, hear)—and the Imperial Government, with which we do not wish to interfere, would remain just as potent as it is to-day to prevent separation. The truth is, the great bulk of the Irish people have no desire for separation, and if Home Rule were granted, before five years, every man—even those who hold extreme views—would be contented and loyal. (Cheers.) The second familiar objection is Scotland. Scotland is contented with the Union, say the objectors, and Scotland is prosperous. True, but what then? Does that prove self-government is wrong? I believe, in principle, Scotland is entitled to Home Rule—(applause)—and I am very sure if the majority of the Scotch people demanded it, as we do, it would be granted. (Applause.) They do not demand it, but does that prove it is wrong? If in the history of the world you find one country which has prospered under the rule of another, and one only, surely it becomes the exception which proves the rule. Scotland has prospered, not because of, but in spite of, the Union. (Applause.) She has had many advantages denied to Ireland. Virtually she has been ruled by Scotchmen. I have never seen a Scotch bill receiving the support of a majority of the Scotch members which was not willingly passed into law by the Imperial Parliament, with as little hesitation as Irish bills, supported by a majority of the Irish members, were invariably rejected. The executive officials for Scotland are Scotchmen; those for Ireland are not Irishmen. And in addition to all this, there are not wanting signs that the day is not far distant when Scotland will demand just the same measure of self-government which the Irish people demand to day. (Applause.) I have now finished. I have endeavoured to prove that Home Rule, which I have very clearly explained, is reasonable theoretically, judged by the test of common sense, political philosophy, and history, and that it is likely to prove advantageous in practice, and I have combatted some of the most popular objections to the scheme. (Hear, hear.) I trust I have fulfilled my word not to make any appeals either to the passions or the imagination of my audience—(hear, hear),—and I hope I have not done so at the cost of being dull or uninteresting. The most I can expect is that the few words I have spoken on this matter will have the effect of making intelligent and honest men in this country think calmly over this question. (Applause.) It is a question which must come up for settlement sooner or later. Upon its speedy and peaceful settlement between the two countries, I believe, in my heart and conscience, depends the future welfare, not only of Ireland, but of the Empire. Without some such settlement I see no hope for the permanent prosperity and pacification of my country. (Hear, hear.) Ireland's malady is one which must be cured by Ireland herself. The great interpreter of human nature and human passions makes Macbeth ask of the physician:—

> "Canst thou not minister to a mind diseased;
> Pluck from the memory a rooted sorrow;
> Raze out the written troubles of the brain,
> And with some sweet oblivious antidote
> Cleanse the stuffed bosom of the perilous grief
> That weighs upon the heart?"

And the physician makes answer, and says—

> "Therein the patient
> Must minister to herself!"

(Prolonged cheers.) So we say of Ireland. Her malady has baffled all the efforts of the most skilful political physicians of England. Ireland's hope is in herself. Ireland herself must "minister to herself." She must bind up her own wounds, and cure her own diseases. (Applause.) The vital force which has lived through seven centuries of oppression still animates our race. The simple faith, the kindly nature, the indomitable courage which made Ireland the centre of civilisation in the far-off ages of the past, are not yet extinct. (Hear, hear.) Give them free scope, give them the bracing influences of a free Constitution, and before a generation has passed away, the long and dreary ages of bitterness and strife and hatred will be forgotten, and Ireland—the Ireland of our hopes and tears and prayers—will enter on a new era of liberty, prosperity, and peace. (Enthusiastic cheering.)

Mr. W. T. COONAN moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Redmond for his lecture. He felt it to be a great honour by his presence there—not as an Irishman, but as an Australian—to show that he wished for Ireland to have what Australia enjoyed. After the able lecture which Mr. Redmond had delivered, he did not think there would be one individual who would not think seriously as to whether Ireland ought not to have Home Rule. They had it in all the Australian colonies; and he wished to see freedom for Englishmen, Irishmen, and Scotchmen, and all the civilised world. The cause would be advocated more by weighing well what Mr. Redmond had said than by listening to anything he himself could say. He would ask them to accord Mr. Redmond their heartfelt thanks, and he himself trusted that Mr. Redmond would live long, and that the day was not far distant when they would hear of his addressing an Irish Parliament.

Mr. JOHN TOOHEY seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously.

Mr. REDMOND having responded, Mr. W. REDMOND proposed a vote of thanks to the chairman, and this being carried, cheers were given for the Queen, and the proceedings terminated.

THE POSTAL CONFERENCE.

The following is a summary of the resolutions arrived at by the Postal Conference:—

"That this Conference, having had under its consideration the various despatches from the Imperial Government and other memoranda and statistics respecting the Universal Postal Union, is of opinion,—1. That the Australasian colonies should apply for admission to the said Postal Union. 2. That the stipulations suggested by the Postmaster-General of England, in the despatch dated 6th November, 1882, as precedent to such entry, be insisted on. 3. That each of the Australasian colonies, parties to this agreement, be accorded a separate voice in the affairs of the Union. 4. That each colony continue the management and responsibility of its existing subsidised line, but that any other colony using such line shall pay to the subsidising colony the full amount of the postage upon all postal matter despatched from such colony; the subsidising colony paying all transit rates on homeward mails, and receiving the proportion of Union transit rates due on outward mails, and any contribution from England in respect of the postal matter carried by each line. 5. That if on annual investigation it be shown that, by adopting Postal Union rates, any such subsidising colony incurs a greater loss than it at present incurs (subject, in the case of New South Wales and New Zealand, to modification consequent upon the reduced Pacific mail contract now being entered into), an adjustment shall be made of such excess loss whereby it shall be borne by the subsidising colony and the other colonies using such line, in proportion to the postal matter carried. 6. In the event of New South Wales concluding a contract with the Orient Company, it shall be at the risk of that colony only; but any other colony transmitting postal matter thereby shall pay the said company a rate not less than 10s. per pound on letters, and 6d. per pound on newspapers and packets transmitted homeward thereby. 7. That no future postal subsidy shall be subject to this agreement except by the unanimous approval of the colonies assenting hereto.

"That the agreement of May, 1878, in regard to the apportionment between the Australasian colonies of the subsidy to the Port Darwin cable, on the basis of population, shall be taken to include in such calculation the aboriginal inhabitants of the respective colonies.

"That it is desirable the attention of the Cable Company should be called to their failure to carry out the contract, and to the recent interruptions in the cable, which, were the two cables maintained in working order, in terms of the agreement, would not occur, and that they be required to intimate at what time that portion of the agreement relating to the maintaining of two cables will be carried into effect.

"That, as regards Government messages transmitted over the Port Darwin cable, the term 'Government messages,' in accordance with the cable agreement of May, 1879, shall apply to 'messages sent from or to her Majesty, her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies, or any Government Department in the United Kingdom, or the respective Agent-General for the colonies of New South Wales, Victoria, or any other Australasian colony or colonies as to which it shall be notified as hereinbefore mentioned, on the one hand, and the Governors, or Chief or Colonial Secretaries, of, or any Government Department of the various Colonial Governments on the other, or any of them, on matters relating to the administration of the Governments.' It being understood from the above clause that messages sent from or to any Department of the Public Service in Great Britain or the colonies be considered 'Government messages,' and entitled to be transmitted at the reduced rates.

"That, in the opinion of this Conference, it is desirable that uniform packet and parcel postal rates and regulations should be adopted by all the Australasian colonies, and that Messrs. Todd, C.M.G., Lambton, Jackson, and Packer, be requested to submit draft regulations.

"That, as regards telegrams passing between the Australasian colonies and New Zealand, 15 letters shall be allowed as the maximum length of each word, instead of 10 letters, as proposed by the Cable Company.

"That South Australia having intimated her willingness to reduce the charge on press telegrams for transmission by cable by 25 cent., this conference is of opinion that the Indian and Indo-European Telegraph Departments, the Eastern Telegraph Company, and the Indo-European Telegraph Company should be requested to make a similar reduction.

"That in the opinion of this conference, it is desirable that a system of postal notes not exceeding 10s. in value, should be introduced, and have currency throughout the Australasian colonies; and that the South Australian Government be requested to prepare a Draft Bill on the subject.

"That, having had under consideration a communication from Messrs. John Fraser and Co., Gibbs, Bright, and Co., and other merchants in Sydney, on the subject of 'Federal Quarantine,' the conference agreed to the following resolution:—'That, in the opinion of this conference, it is desirable that such quarantine station should, if practicable, be established.'

"The conference having considered the subject of reduction of intercolonial telegraph rates, and it appearing that South Australia, Queensland, and Tasmania could not agree on the subject, the colonies of New South Wales and Victoria agreed to an intercolonial rate of (1) one shilling for ten (10) words."

The following is the communication referred to above respecting Federal Quarantine:—

"Sydney, 30th April, 1883.

"The Hon. the Colonial Treasurer, Sydney.

"Sir,—We have the honour to say that we have read with much interest the suggestions on 'Federal Quarantine' made by the Health Officer and medical adviser to Government, dated 6th April, 1883, as follows:—'Federal Quarantine.—Not only would I advise the maintenance and strict administration of our quarantine law, but I would go a step further and urge upon the Government the desirability of seeking the co-operation of the other colonies in establishing stations at various parts of the continent distant from the great centres of population—for instance, at Thursday Island on the north, and at King George's Sound on the west—so that vessels approaching the continent with infectious disease on board might land the sick persons at as early a period as possible, and then proceed to their destination. These stations might form a sort of federal quarantine, and be maintained by a contribution from each colony in proportion to the number of its population.'

"We have the honour to suggest that the subject be brought before the Postal Conference about to meet in this city.

"Although it be foreign to the subject for which the Conference has been invited, we trust its importance will be considered sufficient to entitle it to consideration.

"We are advised that the total initiatory and annual cost would be quite trifling in amount.

"We have the honor to be, Sir, your obedient servants."

Signed by Gibbs, Bright, and Co.; John Frazer and Co.; J. Weir, agent for the P. and O. Company; G. S. Vaill, manager of the Orient Company; Young and Lark, Dalgety, Blackwood, and Co., Geo. R. Stevens and Co.

MUSICAL.

Before my departure for Europe, I would like to direct the attention of my musical friends and others who might be desirous of obtaining the services of a good tuner—one who thoroughly understands the requirements of a pianoforte. In so doing, I fully concur with the expressed opinions of Arabella Goddard, Robert Heller, Alfred Anderson, and Carlotta Patti, that Mr. J. D. D. JACKSON, who has tuned for me for the past 16 years, is a person well qualified in his profession and to be depended upon, accordingly it affords me great pleasure in recommending him.

FRESH FOOD AND ICE CO.'S (LIMITED) PURE COUNTRY MILK.

Owing to the prevalence of Typhoid Fever in the city, housekeepers and mothers of families would do well to ascertain that the Milk they are using does not contain germs that may cause an attack of this dread disease, for no article in daily use is so susceptible to taint and contamination.

THE F. F. AND I. CO. (LIMITED) use every means to see that the milk they deliver is Perfectly Pure.

It is obtained from the best milk-producing districts in the colony, as may be inferred from the fact that butter sent to Sydney from the same districts at all times commands the highest price.

So soon as the cows are milked the milk passes over a LAURENCE COOLER, reducing the temperature below 60 degrees, thus reducing the risk from contaminating germs to a minimum.

The milk is then sent in special cans to Sydney, where it is examined be experts, who use every scientific method to insure ITS BEING PURE AND SWEET.

When passed as such it is cooled down to a temperature of 32 degrees, or the freezing point for water (28 degrees is the freezing point for milk).

The reducing of the milk to this intensely low temperature must naturally PREVENT ITS BEING A MEDIUM OF DISEASE.

THE CANS, &c., USED IN DELIVERY are rinsed out with hot water containing a quantity of CONDY'S FLUID immediately upon coming in from each delivery, and then thoroughly washed out with scalding water.

INSPECTORS ARE KEPT in the COUNTRY DISTRICTS to ascertain that the DAIRIES SUPPLYING this COMPANY with MILK are kept thoroughly SWEET AND CLEAN.

From the above it will be seen that the COUNTRY MILK SUPPLIED by this COMPANY is in every respect WHAT MILK OUGHT TO BE, and by the methods adopted must be free from germs that too often prove INJURIOUS TO LIFE.

It may be well to add that the stables are entirely distinct from the milk store rooms, so it must be evident that the excrements from horses, &c., common to all stables may at any time contaminate the milk.
